

Candidates Don't Agree on Tax Hike

Seven of the 14 candidates for U. S. representative from the 10th Congressional district appeared at a meeting Saturday night to answer question on three subjects.

Appearing were Democrats Jim Wallace, Scott City; B. F. "Hot" Rogers, Caruthersville; David Rolwing, Charleston, and Thad Bullock, Bill D. Burlison and Bob Robinson, all of Cape Girardeau, and one Republican, Vernon H. Landgraf, Cape Girardeau.

The meeting was one of a series throughout the 10th district sponsored by the Missouri Farm Bureau Federation to give candidates a chance to express their views.

About 60 attended the session at the junior high school.

Candidates not at the meeting were Democrats Winston V. Buford, Eminence; Jay Moundy, Fisk; Harry L. Peterson, Flat River; John Havis, Sikeston, and Edward Robb, Perryville, and Republicans William Carhart, Alton, and Thomas J. Cox, Poplar Bluff.

Each candidate was given five minutes to tell his background and qualifications for office and to make a brief statement of his policies.

Then each candidate was asked three questions which had been selected before the meeting. Each candidate responded to the same question before the next was asked.

The questions and candidates' responses:

1. Will an increase in federal income tax halt the present inflationary trend of the economy?

Landgraf: Yes, he favors a temporary tax increase "provided by the fat and butter" taken out of the federal budget. He said an $8 billion to $11 billion cut in the federal budget would be more realistic than the $6 billion cut requested by Congress. He said the tax hike would only be a stopgap approach and that the problem lays in too much federal spending for nonessential programs.

Wallace: Yes, "but only temporarily." He said he favored the tax increase "only because we are in trouble." He advocates a cut in federal spending.

Burlison: Yes, increasing taxes will put a brake on inflation, but government spending must also be cut. He said that the biggest problem is the cost of the Vietnam War and that the U.S. must find an honorable way out of the war.

Rogers: Yes, "but will the advantages outweigh the disadvantages?" He said raising taxes would hurt the working people and curtail economic growth. "Some of the government programs are worthless." He wants workable federal programs that will last and wants something for the money he would vote for.

Bullock: No, "it would curb inflation only temporarily." He said the tax increase would hurt the poor people. "Tax the corporations that have the money to spend. Don't tax the little man."

Rolwing: No, prices are rising about four per cent a year, which means federal spending would have to be cut by $30 billion a year to be effective. The proposed 10 per cent surtax in an $800 billion a year economy would raise only $10 billion, of which $3 billion would be paid by corporations and $7 billion by citizens. Interest rates will go down and investments will increase, causing more inflation.

Robison: No, because tax increases haven't curbed inflation in the past. The U. S. has $21 billion in uncollected debts from allies in World War II. "We should stop loaning and start borrowing from these countries instead of from American citizens. We must cut some of the fat and tighten belts."

2. Do you favor the present program?

Burlison: Yes, it should be continued with modifications. The farmer's income is still declining. The present program is a good starting point, but he favors an increase in supports and payments under the present farm program, expanding it as it relates to international

Rogers: Yes, he is for the parity concept until something is proven sufficient to take its place. "The farmer has to be insured of something for his investment." With two crop failures in the past two years the cotton farmer would have been ruined without the program. He favors promotion of new uses for cotton so it can remain competitive with fibers.

Bullock: Yes, keep it as it is or "we will lose the farmer." He advocates selling surplus farm goods abroad rather than giving them away through foreign aid. He said if the farmer can grow more bushels of corn and wheat per acre and if he can market the products, the prices should go up.

Landgraf: The current program needs improvement, farmers are not making an adequate return on their investments. The average farm income was off $600 last year but the farmer borrowed an average of $1,300. He favors setting up an advisory committee of farmers and would like the government to "get out of the farm business gradually" and let farmers run their own business.

Robison: No, he does not favor the present program. "It's a loser, it's wrong." He pointed out that grain prices dropped from 1951 to 1967. "Something has to be done with the program."

Rolwing: Yes, the objective of the program is to help farmers work together and prevent overproduction. The program "helps to tailor production to the market." A University of Iowa study shows that prices would drop and stay down if the program were dropped. "I'm helpful but that he is not in willing to consider alternatives, but until they are presented let's continue what we have."

3. Do you favor federal aid to education?

Burlison: Yes. "We have just about reached the saturation point on the local level to raise money for education. . . . The state foundation program has tripled in the past three years but it is still not enough if we are to have quality education in the future. We need another source of funds." The federal government has provided funds on a piecemeal basis. "We will have to go to more federal aid disbursed by the states."

Rogers: Yes. "Schools have reached the saturation point on local taxing. . . . Part of the tax dollar going to Washington should be returned to the local communities." He favors the federal government returning to states part of the tax dollar to be administered by state and local governments.

Bullock: Yes, the federal government should help fund education it should not set up offices to administer the funds. "The federal government should send money to Jefferson City to be disbursed by the state."

Landgraf: Yes, he favors funding federal money to the state rather than to local school boards became the state could "fight the red tape" of federal programs. He said some federal education programs, such as Sikes.

increased mobility in the U. S., education is no longer a local problem but a national one. Local property taxes have been pushed to the limit, but there is still a problem of attracting and keeping good teachers because of low salaries, especially for those teachers with several years experience. He favors the federal government funding tax money back to the state with only two strings attached—the schools must be used only for education and the state must continue to make the same financial contribution it now makes.

Winds Raze Large Barn

BLODGETT — Heavy winds Saturday afternoon destroyed a large barn on the farm of W. A. Beggs, west of here on route H.

Tree damage was reported along route H, between Miner and Blodgett.

The winds damaged a large number of trees in Sikeston. One was broken at its roots at the home of Mrs. Fred Geske, 809 Sikes.

Beefed-up Viet Red Air Defenses Introduce Soviet Long-Range Guns

SAIGON (AP) — The enemy command stepped up the pace of battle over the weekend and for the first time introduced Soviet long-range anti-aircraft guns to its beefed up air defenses just north of the demilitarized zone. A U. S. spokesman said 16 of the guns were spotted and air strikes destroyed or damaged them all.

Allied forces reported killing more than 1,000 enemy troops in a weekend of savage fighting from the outskirts of Saigon to the demilitarized zone.

In keeping with Hanoi's proclaimed "fight and talk" policy, the Communist command's push came as North Vietnamese and American negotiators prepared for their fifth meeting today in the Paris cease-fire talks. A recent casualty report said 54 killed and 192 wounded in the series of battles. South Vietnamese losses were termed light.

Sharp fighting continued on three sides of Saigon today. The Viet Cong was believed moving 500 to 1,000 troops toward the capital.

The heaviest fighting over the weekend came in the northern sector, where North Vietnamese troops renewed their pressure on the U. S. Marine headquarters at Dong Ha, and in the central highlands, where a massive campaign may be shaping up.

U. S. spokesmen said superior allied firepower led to enemy defeats in most of the clashes, but American troops appeared to have been set back in at least two places.

About 800 North Vietnamese overran a section of the perimeter and four bunkers at a U. S. 4th Infantry Division patrol and artillery base 11 miles west of Dak To in the central highlands. In more than seven hours of fighting, 14 U. S. infantrymen were killed and 56 wounded. U. S. fighter-bombers joined the battle and the enemy retreated in thick fog.

About 400 Viet Cong troops attacking with grenades, mortars and small arms killed five infantrymen of a U. S. 25th Division unit in night defensive positions on the northwestern outskirts of Saigon, six miles from the center of the city. The enemy withdrew early today.

As in the first two weeks of May, heavy fighting raged again around Dong Ha, headquarters of the U. S. 3rd Marine Division, 11 miles below the demilitarized zone.

South Vietnamese infantrymen reported killing 99 enemy soldiers Sunday on the same battleground where government troops claimed 152 killed the previous day. Government losses in Sunday's battle were reported as one killed and one wounded, and casualties Saturday also were reported light.

U. S. Marines of the 4th Regiment ran into North Vietnamese troops in bunkers seven miles northeast of Dong Ha Saturday and reported killing 103 of them in a 14-hour fight.

Thuy, Harriman Swap New Blasts

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam charged today that the Paris peace talks had so far failed to achieve any results because the United States has refused to take up "the main aim of these conversations," the end of the bombing of North Vietnam.

The United States accused North Vietnam of giving out distorted figures on American and allied losses in the war.

"We hope that you are not deceiving yourselves," U. S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman told Ambassador Xuan Thuy.

Today's session, the fifth in two weeks of meetings, lasted for two hours and 10 minutes. The next meeting was set for Friday.

U. S. deputy chief negotiator Cyrus R. Vance arranged to leave for Washington to report to President Johnson. Thuy made a 5400-word statement and concluded with this question: "When does the United States cease unconditionally their bombardments and all other acts of war on the entire territory on the Democratic Republic of Vietnam in order to permit discussions to go on to other problems of interest to the two sides?"

Kennedy Shows Concern For Oregon's Undecided

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy courted the undecided voter in Oregon today while Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy claimed "every sign" now points to a hefty vote in his column in Tuesday's Democratic presidential primary.

And Republican Richard M. Nixon said supporters of two absent GOP rivals, Govs. Ronald Reagan of California and Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, are working in tandem in an effort to stop his drive for the White House nomination.

The former vice president said he does not think that effort will succeed, and forecast

Dexter Woman Dies After Auto Overturns

A Dexter woman died ill, attempted to pass a 1968 Ford pickup truck, driven by Paul Montgomery, 27, Chaffee, Sunday at 10:45 p.m. on Sunday, on highway 25, two miles south of Bloomfield.

She was Frankolene Mae Sides, 26, 310 East Vine Street, Dexter, a passenger in a 1965 Volkswagen, driven by Ralph Walters Jr., 38, route one, Dexter. The vehicle ran off the road into a ditch and overturned, the state patrol reported.

Her one-year old son, Tony, received a skull fracture. The driver received a concussion and bruises.

The body was taken to the Rainey Funeral Home in Dexter.

Four Chaffee residents were injured in a two-car collision Sunday at 11:40 a.m. on highway 51 at McBride, in Perry County. A 1964 Ford, driven by Jerry Gentry, 26, Rockford, two of the injured in the Gentry car were from Chaffee. The driver, possible internal injuries.

The injured passengers were Charles Gentry, 57, sustained cuts on his head; and Willa Gentry, 51, a hip injury and cuts on her head.

In the truck the injured were Montgomery, numerous cuts, and a passenger, Don Eastwood, 40, minor injuries, both of Chaffee.

The six injured were taken to Perry County Memorial Hospital in Perryville.

Gentry was given a summons for careless and imprudent driving. Jerry Marler, 23, Poplar

Bluff, lost control of his 1967 Honda motorcycle in loose gravel, Sunday at 2 p.m., on route W, one and one-half miles north of Poplar Bluff, and was thrown from his vehicle.

He received cuts and bruises and was treated at Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Three were injured Saturday at 6 p.m. on highway 153 near Risco in New Madrid county, in a one-car accident.

Ambers Everett, 33, Malden, lost control of his 1953 Chevrolet pickup truck, ran off the road and overturned.

Everett received cuts, and two passengers, Phyllis Moore, 10, and Ethel Everett, 33, both of Parma, were hurt. The child received internal injuries, and the woman a possible broken pelvis and possible skull fracture.

The injured were brought to the Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston.

Two Accused Of Taking 15 Injured Gun And Truck In Accidents

NEW MADRID — Two brothers, John Delameter, 20, and Donnie Delameter, 17, both of near Canolau, today in magistrate court, were charged with burglary and larceny, with bond set at $500, and on armed robbery, with bond set at $2,000.

The two were accused of entering the home of Buddy Alsop on Champion Lane, four miles southeast of Sikeston Saturday morning where a 20-gauge bolt action shotgun was taken.

The two were accused of going to the home of Hugh Rogers, who lives on the same road, and with the gun and a pistol, demanding a 1965 Ford pickup truck from Rogers.

Rogers called the sheriff's office after the pair left and the state highway patrol.

The two were arrested walking along a country road and taken to the New Madrid county jail.

Fifteen persons were treated and released from Missouri Delta Community hospital for injuries over the weekend:

PARIS (AP) — French union officials, management and the government reached agreement on wage issues today to end the nation's 11-day strike, but the immediate response from French workers was "non."

Meetings at big factories in Paris, Lyon, Marseilles and Nantes rejected the settlement and for the first time since the strike began Paris was hit by scattered electricity cuts.

Employees of the state-run gas and electricity company were angry because a meeting on their grievances had been put off.

Union leaders toured the strike-bound factories explaining the agreement. The workers shouted their disapproval at the nationalized Renault automobile works and the privately owned Citroen plant.

None of the union leaders would predict whether the 10 million striking workers would accept the pact and end the giant defiance of President Charles de Gaulle's government. But Georges Seguy, secretary general of the Communist-led General Confederation of Workers, said the decisions should be made "in a short time."

Seguy said the unions had achieved only partial success in the two nights of negotiating sessions, which lasted a total of 27 hours.

"We have arrived at an ensemble of conclusions which one can say constitutes an agreement," Premier Georges Pompidou told newsmen at the decisive 14-hour session ended at 7:45 a.m.

If the settlement is ratified by the workers, its cost may force De Gaulle to curtail or even abandon such expensive items as his nuclear strike force and large-scale aid to developing countries. He may also have to dig deep into France's hoard of gold which he has been using to put pressure on the dollar and the British pound.

Although the labor front was looking up, Pompidou was plagued with the possibility of more trouble on the second front of France's crisis, the student rebellion.

The premier's tactic has been to give priority to the workers' demands since the general strike is having the more serious effect on the nation's economy and its life.

Handicapped Boy Wins Battle for Diploma

By Warren Sokolis

NEW MADRID — When Danny Joe Taylor received his high school diploma at New Madrid high school commencement exercises, he was given a five-minute ovation by the audience.

It was an unusual response for a high school commencement audience, but young Taylor's high school education did not come as easily as it does to most graduating seniors.

For the past six years he has been paralyzed from his shoulders to his feet.

Taylor, 21, was injured in a swimming accident near Sikeston July 8, 1962. He was diving from a bridge and hit the bottom of a swimming hole, sustaining a broken neck and spinal injury.

Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin D. Taylor, had completed his freshman year at New Madrid high school when he was injured.

He was in Barnes Hospital at St. Louis 11 months following the accident. The first nine months he could not sit up.

It was during his confinement at Barnes that Taylor revealed the determination and courage, which carried him through to his goal of completing his high school education.

Doctors at Barnes were surprised that Taylor was able to sit up in his bed after nine months, believing that he probably would be confined to a bed for the rest of his life.

The youth's formal education was resumed after his dismissal from Barnes. He was the second semester of his junior year. When citizens learned that Taylor would need a wheelchair to use at school, they began a fund raising campaign. Residents had already donated $2,027 to help the family pay for hospital bills when he was first injured.

The campaign to provide him with an electric wheelchair began on a Tuesday. By the following Sunday $900 has been collected. Students sold soft drinks at school and conducted a house-to-house collection.

When Taylor returned to classroom study, he encountered another problem. Because he has no feeling or muscular control of his hands, he is unable to write.

In his home study this handicap was no problem since all classwork was done orally. However, his fellow students pitched in to help him in the classroom. Taylor dictated his classwork to students who volunteered to do his writing.

His classroom education was going smoothly, Taylor explained, until last February when he had to go back to Barnes for another operation.

"I was out of school for seven weeks and didn't know if I could catch up in my school work in time to graduate with the class," he said. "Toward the end of the term I had to do a lot of all-night studying."

But through his efforts and with the help of his family, classmates and teachers, Taylor was able to complete his high school requirements on time and to participate in commencement exercises with the rest of the regular classroom study during class.

Looking back on the past six years, Taylor recalls that there were times when he didn't think he would finish high school. "I couldn't have made it without the help of my family and friends," he remarked.

"I was really discouraged at first when I saw everybody doing things I liked to do," he recalls. He had played a lot of baseball before his accident and liked to swim and fish.

But he was able to develop other interests to occupy his spare time.

One of his hobbies is tape recording. He corresponds with other handicapped persons throughout the country by tape recording as one would do by letter. He also collects tropical fish and still enjoys going fishing and reading adventure stories.

He would like to become a ham radio operator. Some of the local residents have been discussing the possibility of providing him with the necessary equipment so he can do this.

Taylor is now considering enrolling at the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana. The university has classroom and dormitory facilities for the handicapped.

He likes sociology and psychology and is considering a career in teaching, social work or counseling.

If his past performance is any indication, Taylor will attain his next goal of a college education. As one of his teachers, Mrs. Dyke, explained:

"He was always so cheerful and wouldn't let anything get him down. I think it's wonderful to see anyone with that much three years of school. determination wanting to accomplish the job as much as he did."

And, she noted, Taylor had an honor roll average his last William County.

Taylor has two sisters, Sylvia, 19, and Joyce, 17, and one brother, Denson, 10. His father is employed at Ralph Anderson an honor roll average his last William County.

Police received a report at 4:25 p.m. Sunday that boys were swimming in basements filled with water in partially completed houses under construction in Collins North Acres. The caller was concerned with the safety of the boys. The youths ran when police arrived.

Tom Vansant, 310 Pam, reported to police at 1:37 p.m. Saturday that someone entered his yard Friday night and mowed shrubbery causing considerable damage.

Man Charged in Shooting Death

KENNETT (AP) — John Usery, 48, of Caruth, Mo., was charged today with first-degree murder in the fatal weekend shooting of David Mitchell, 18, of Kennett.

Dunklin County Sheriff Raymond Scott said the youth was shot to death in a parking lot near his home.

Scott said the two scuffled as a result of a renewal of an argument that started Friday.

Mitchell was shot in the back of the head with a .32 caliber revolver.

Usery was ordered held without bond.

Potash for fertilizer is taken from the Dead Sea.

DANNY JOE TAYLOR holds his high school diploma at commencement exercises of New Madrid high school.

Taylor, 21, has been paralyzed from his shoulders to his feet since a diving accident six years ago.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS:
A PRICE AND A DEBT

The obligation is staggering.
May 30 is Memorial Day. We set this day aside to remember our war dead and to revere them for the price they paid.
More than 600,000 American servicemen have died for their country. Since the Revolutionary War, more than 2,300,000 Americans have been killed or wounded in the service of their country.
Many gave up their lives so that we, the living, might know Freedom. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty: It is also a debt we owe our war dead.

When you ask a favor you borrow, and some day you will be asked to return what was loaned you.

If a man is poor in his old age, his children abuse him because they have to do so much for him, and if he is rich they abuse him because he does not do more for them.

A WAY TO IMPROVE
ELECTORAL COLLEGE

Nearly everyone who has written on the subject for the last 180 years or so has called for doing away with or drastically altering the Electoral College method of choosing the nation's president.

The criticism has been especially vigorous this year because of the possibility that the third-party candidacy of former Alabama Gov. George Wallace could throw the election into the House of Representatives. The wheeling and dealing that might accompany that eventually gives some people nightmares.

There are 538 electoral votes, which is the total of the representatives and senators of the 50 states, plus three for the District of Columbia. When John Q. Public votes in November, he votes not for the presidential and vice presidential candidates of the party of his choice but for a slate of electors. The elected electors in turn meet in their respective state capitals in December and are morally - but not legally - bound to vote for the candidates they represented on the ballot.

The Constitution provides that when no candidate receives a majority (270) of the electoral votes, the House of Representatives must choose the president from the top three candidates, with each state's delegation casting one vote. (Senators vote as individuals for one of the top two vice presidential candidates.)

There are two main proposals for reform. One is to abolish the Electoral College outright and elect the president and vice president by direct vote, like every other elective federal official. The other proposal is to retain the college, but make its votes proportional to the popular vote in each state.

The Electoral College is not lacking for defenders, however, who argue that it is not the unmitigated evil its opponents say it is.

For one thing, it has spared the United States from the divisive and paralyzing bane of splinter parties. The electoral system gives the candidate with the most popular votes ALL of a state's electoral votes, even if his popular majority was one. (It also gives the more populous states a deservedly greater weight in the election than the less populous.)

This winner-take-all system, because it maximizes the victory of the winner in a close election, has undoubtedly served to reconcile the voters whose candidate lost.

In 1960, John F. Kennedy had a popular majority of a mere 118,000 out of 68 million popular votes, but in electoral votes he defeated Richard Nixon by 303 to 219. There have been 14 other presidents, including Abraham Lincoln, who did not receive a majority of the popular vote, yet who won decisively in the Electoral College.

Even if the president were elected by direct popular vote, there would still be the possibility, whenever there were more than two candidates, of no one receiving a majority.

The Electoral College is not ideal by any means. Yet, except for two or three elections, it has served the nation well.

If there must be a constitutional amendment, one legally binding electors to vote as the people instruct them and stating simply that the candidate receiving the most, not the majority, of the votes in the Electoral College be declared president would correct the most serious deficiencies of the system while preserving its desirable features.

Lots of men are guilty of this meanest of all tricks: borrowing money and failing to pay it back. A man who is perfectly honest with other men, because he knows he has to be, is often dishonest with his mother or sister.

Don Agnew defines a beatnik as one who has flaked out on the job, but kept the coffee break.

At a church banquet every speaker except the preacher thinks it is essential to start his remarks with a joke on the preacher.

Americans who have not flown their flags since last Labor Day, or even before that, have an excellent opportunity to give Old Glory a needed springtime dusting and airing in advance of Memorial Day.

Americans who seldom or never have flown the flag have an excellent opportunity to get into the habit.

The occasion is the opening of peace negotiations, between this country and North Vietnam in Paris. It has been suggested that every American who can do so display the flag each day for at least a week when the discussions get under way as an appropriate means of indicating the solidarity of the American people behind their leaders and diplomatic representatives.

To some, the idea may sound corny. To others, it may perhaps smack of chauvinism. To still others, in view of the deep dissension, disaffection or disillusionment the war has aroused in many people, the idea may at best seem unrealistic.

But if the men in Hanoi watch the American home front closely - and they do - and if what they have seen in the past has suggested to them that they may gain at the bargaining table that which the sacrifices of American soldiers have denied to them in battle, the greatest service we could all make to the cause of peace just possibly might be such a dramatic demonstration of patriotism and unity as the mass, week-long, public and private display of the national emblem.

It would give Hanoi, and the rest of the world, unmistakable proof that we are in no sense striking the colors in the Vietnam struggle. Far from it. We are - to paraphrase General Grant - prepared to fight it out on the Paris line, or any other line, all summer, and all next winter and all the summer after that, if need be, until there is achieved a just, meaningful and workable peace for all concerned. Nothing more and nothing less.

The most unrealistic thing Americans could do now that negotiations are actually to begin, negotiations that all have prayed for these many long months, would be to continue sniping at and finding fault with the administration and to fail to support it at a time when that support is most essential for an honorable termination of the military conflict.

Americans have usually been quick to fly the flag whenever their country has embarked on the arduous and costly prosecution of a war. Never before have they been asked to fly the flag as their country undertook the exceedingly difficult and laborious business of prosecuting a peace.

Americans who have a flag should get it out and fly it. Americans who don't have a flag should go out and get one and then fly it.

Some people are always seeing things that should be done. "Somebody ought to attend to this," they say. True, but who?

Clever replies are those you think of the morning after the argument.

FBI CHIEF FRACTURES BRUTALITY

Law enforcement today is being degraded, purposely in many instances, by the widespread and indiscriminate use of the term "police brutality."

This practice is called a guilt-by-language process by some individuals. They may be right. For example, the word "juvenile" has been associated with "delinquency" so often and so long that now, when used alone, it has a disagreeable connotation to much of the public.

"Police brutality" conjures up visions of hulking men in uniform clubbing and beating innocent people. Rarely, however, does the term fit the circumstances to which it is applied. It is used in wild accounts of enforcement officers' lifting limp demonstrators who block busy thoroughfares, in references to oral commands by policemen who disperse potential troublemakers, in depicting efforts by officers to halt violations of the law, and in describing any number of other sworn duties performed by policemen.

We know there is a calculated and deliberate attempt by some groups to inflame hostility against law enforcement by charging "police brutality" without cause. To a large degree they have succeeded. The term is banded about in all media of communication without serious consideration as to its true meaning or its harmful effect on a profession which is charged with enforcing the basic rules of civilized living.

I agree with a growing number of responsible news editors, public officials, and law-abiding citizens that it is high time to get this "pet slogan" into a better perspective. We do not deny there have been instances of misuse of force by enforcement officers, but such incidents are not as prevalent as the public has been led to believe. A general and accepted principle of the law has been that an officer may use such force as is necessary to make lawful arrests, protect his life, and perform other specific duties. Frequently, however, the choice is not his to make; he has to use force or be maimed or killed and have the rights of all the people trampled by those who have no respect for law or due process. Even then, his best efforts often are not enough, as evidenced by the appalling number of officers assaulted and killed each year.

Policemen have the same basic rights as others. There is no reason why they should be singled out for ridicule by invalid blanket accusations. The public, the press, and law enforcement itself should launch a concerted drive to stop the semantic indictment of police. Allegations and incidents should be reported and described in realistic, impartial, and truthful terms. If an officer is assaulted while making an arrest and uses undue force to subdue the person, then call it "undue force." If an officer uses profane language to a citizen, then describe it as profane language. If an officer is thought to be biased or prejudiced in his treatment of groups or individuals, then the complaint should so state. But the constant cry of "police brutality" as a catch phrase, exploited and used as camouflage for illegal conduct, is dead wrong. It is a stigmatization of police by rote.

had requested a wiretap be placed on the phone of Dr. Martin Luther King. The memo explained how the FBI had persuaded Kennedy to change his mind - for the time being.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: FBI memos show that Bobby Kennedy authorized eavesdropping; he showed great interest in Fred Black hotel room bugging; he took initiative in tapping Dr. Martin Luther King's phone.

PLATA BASIN FACT
On March 22, 1967, Drew Pearson, traveling in South America, reported that the countries bordering the river Plata were considering a treaty to develop the Plata Basin industrially and economically.

One year later, on May 21, 1968, Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Paraguay and Uruguay concluded such an agreement.

WASHINGTON - Sen. Robert F. Kennedy has denied that when attorney general he authorized the wiretapping of bugging of Dr. Martin Luther King, or on any other of the FBI's eavesdropping activity.

In a conversation with the authors of this column last January, he denied that he knew anything about the FBI's eavesdropping. In referring to the bugging of lobbyist Fred Black's room in the Sheraton-Carlton Hotel he said he had not known about it until he read it in the newspapers.

Kennedy also denied having anything to do with the investigation of Bobby Baker, the ex-senate secretary who may have been investigated for the purpose of linking him with the then vice president, Lyndon Johnson. Baker and Fred Black were intimate friends, and President Johnson has been convinced that Kennedy launched the black probe as a means of knocking LBJ off his brother's 1964 ticket. Kennedy, however, denied this.

"If I had ordered an investigation of Bobby Baker," he told us, "someone would have written a memorandum to that effect; and there is no such memo."

It is not pleasant to be in the position of challenging the word of a member of the Kennedy family. In all deference to the former attorney general, however, there exist some important memos in the justice department which show conclusively that he did have knowledge of eavesdropping and that he authorized part of it.

One memo was written on July 16, 1963, after Kennedy had requested a wiretap be placed on the phone of Dr. Martin Luther King. The memo explained how the FBI had persuaded Kennedy to change his mind - for the time being.

BUGGING FRED BLACK
Another is a written notation on an FBI report on the bugging of Fred Black's room in the Carlton Hotel. This eavesdropping was recorded in various memos in which FBI agents gave details on extensive conversations pertaining to the political affairs of Sen. Mike Monroney and Rep. Carl Albert of Oklahoma. Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan, the legislative operations of President Johnson in getting bills through congress, and the placing of North American Aviation and General Dynamics Defense plants in certain congressional districts in order to help friendly congressmen. The monitored conversations also unearthed the fact that Bobby Baker was a frequent caller at Black's apartment. There was also some activity which FBI agents noted very discreetly as "sex activity with female."

These reports were definitely submitted to Attorney General Kennedy and he appeared to be very much interested in them. For he scribbled a notation on one report to Courtney Evans to keep him further advised.

Courtney Evans was then an assistant director of the FBI and liaison man between the FBI and the Attorney General's office.

Perhaps the most significant document involving Attorney General Kennedy in eavesdropping, however, was a FBI memo dated July 7, 1961, which reviewed the FBI's eavesdropping policy. This policy was to use bugging or "electronic devices" for crime investigation and wiretaps for national security cases, in other words listening in on foreign agents and potential spies.

Kennedy was represented as "pleased" over the way the FBI was carrying on electronic eavesdropping.

The memo may explain why Bobby Kennedy has been so confident that no eavesdrop memos with his name signed to them exist in the justice department today. For he expressed the wish that the records be returned to the FBI and kept under "the special security conditions which only the FBI had."

SIGNIFICANT MEMO
The memo is signed by FBI liaison man Courtney Evans who became Bobby's close friend and was entertained socially in the Kennedy home. Addressed to Alan H. Belmont, assistant director of the FBI, the memo reads:

"In line with the director's approval, the Attorney General was contacted this morning, July 7, 1961, relative to his observation as to the possibility of utilizing 'electronic devices' in organized crime investigations.

"It was pointed out to the Attorney General that we had taken action with regard to the use of microphone surveillances in these cases and, while they represented an expensive investigative step, we were nevertheless utilizing them in all instances where this was technically feasible and where valuable information might be expected. The strong objections to the utilization of telephone taps as contrasted to microphone surveillances were stressed. The Attorney General stated he recognized the reasons why telephone taps should be restricted to National-Defense-type cases and he was pleased we had been using microphone surveillances where these objections do not apply wherever possible in organized crime matters.

"The Attorney General noted that he had approved several technical surveillances in connection with security-type investigations since he took office, but that he had not kept any record and didn't really know what he had approved and what surveillances were currently in operation. He said that for his own information he would like to see a list of the technical surveillances now in operation. He added that this could be brought over to him personally and that he would look it over and immediately return it because he realized the importance of having these records maintained under the special security conditions which only the FBI had.

"If the director approves, we will have the list of technical surveillances prepared, delivered personally to the Attorney General and then returned to the

These "Consumer Dialogues" between housewives and retailers have helped to build a better understanding of the distribution system.

Retailers in all lines, both chain and independent, have endeavored and never before to cut costs and shave prices to help offset the ravages of inflation. But, it is manifestly impossible for any industry, retailers included, to absorb rising costs that are the direct result of inflationary spending and fiscal policies of government - to say nothing of consumer demand for costly services involving everything from parking lots and piped music to prepared food.

The competitive free market provides amenities and conveniences that would not otherwise be available. It also provides the fairest possible prices through the competitive process for both the necessities and luxuries of life. These are facts that it is important for consumers to understand.

AN IMPORTANT ISSUE

U.S. policy toward Fidel Castro's Cuba may become a much-discussed issue in this year's presidential campaign. The fact cannot be escaped that Cuba has become a base not only for Latin American subversion, but for worldwide subversion as well. Havana is the site of headquarters for the Tricontinental Organization (Asia, Africa and Latin America) which promotes in every way possible the solidarity of so-called "anti-imperialist" movements of the three continents.

The Tricontinental Organization runs 43 guerrilla training camps with the stated purpose of training fighters for "more Vietnams." It has a subsidiary called the Latin-American Solidarity Organization, which maintains a Tricontinental Information Center in New York City.

The Soviet Union, of which Cuba is a client state, is carrying on a twofold offensive against Latin America. On the one hand, Russia gives support to Castro's policy of fostering violent revolution in several countries. On the other hand, the Soviets open diplomatic relations and conclude trade agreements with the very governments their agents are working to destroy.

At the same time, Russia has reduced U. S. strategic superiority in the Caribbean area. According to the highly knowledgeable Citizens Committee for a Free Cuba, the Soviet Union maintains in Cuba 23 operational sites for small missiles and six sites for winged missiles and has perhaps as many as 30,000 members of its own armed forces on the island. These are matters that seriously threaten the internal security of the United States. As such, they should be candidly discussed during this presidential election year. H.L.H.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

PINS AND NEEDLES:
Labor's Image Makers Find Straight and Warped Unionism.
Atlantic City, N.J. - I'm always proud to be among my elders and become one of their peers - especially when I amle along a historic boardwalk with men and women who wove the soul of decency into the fabric of American trade unionism.

Here I am among the gentle people of the Ladies Garment Workers Union now gathered for their 33rd convention - and some of them can remember the early days of hunger, consumption, dawn-to-dusk working days, days so long they saw their little children only when the youngsters were asleep.

And there are now many young people, too, of all races and creeds, graduates of the union's officer training schools, and of the evening educational classes which were started before George M. Cohan wrote "Over There."

Here, then, is a union of some 450,000 led by ex-shortstop Louis Stuber, never making a fetish of honesty because honesty comes naturally to these pins and needles people.

They starve no longer. Only on Broadway and in the movies is the "rag business" filled with joke-telling salesmen, front men and fifth seasons.

Increasingly, the dress industry now is made up of giant firms which have gone public. Railroad and tobacco companies, seeking to diversify, are negotiating for the purchase of these "shops."

And along with the industry - which this union literally saved with its industrial sciences, time and motion studies, and money loans - the International Ladies Garment Workers has grown into a modern behemoth.

Its social welfare funds now total $525.5 million. These monies are managed by the Chase Manhattan Bank. No one makes a "skim" from their investment - except the rank and file.

The ILGWU has 53 accountants in its auditing dept. which was set up 33 years ago, long before it was the practice to report union finances to the membership.

How simple it would be if this was the image of all labor. How easy would be the task of the AFL-CIO's inner-sanctum public relations review committee, headed by the Musicians' union president, Herman Kenin. Soon when George Meany returns from London, Mr. Kenin and his committee colleagues will have to report on updating the labor movement's image.

But it is not only Mr. Stuber's pins and needles people with whom the Musicians union leader must "Madison Ave." the giant labor federation. The AFL-CIO is of many kinds. There are hundreds of men who are business unionists. Some of them, local leaders at that, earn almost as much as the President of the U.S. In modern unionism there is some reason for national chiefs being paid in high-five salaries.

But the local crowd - what of them? They don't run a complex international union, administering billions of dollars in pension funds and real estate. Nor do they deal with multibillion dollar industries.

There is, for example, in Newark, further north in this state, the typical business unionist. His name is Peter Weber, leader of an 8,000-member, manpower-controlling local, 825, of the Operating Engineers. He draws a total annual salary of $84,480 as local president and business manager and as national vice president of the Operating Engineers.

In addition, last year he drew $16,700 from his local in expenses.

For the moment let's skip the fact that last August he was indicted on charges of extortion and conspiracy to extort about one million dollars worth of pipeline construction contracts, according to the government.

Mr. Weber, whose hobby is yachting and collecting Congressional friends, was sponsored by his patron, Joey Fay, a convicted extortionist, who now draws an annual pension of $13,107 from Weber's local. Court records show that years ago Fay used his union power to extort hundreds of thousands of dollars from Eastern contractors. For this he served considerable prison time after Tom Dewey finished with him.

At the recent national Operating Engineers convention, Fay, a delegate who got a standing ovation, nominated Weber for a vice presidency.

The union records show that in the last year Weber's local 825 gave Fay a $5,692 car. For a leader of the proletariat, that's a rather well-priced wagon.

How many poor families in Newark could this $5,000 have helped buy a pair of shoes, for a school youngster, or a suit of clothes for the threadbare breadwinner or a dress for the housewife who hasn't had one for years?

And so, here by the sea, it's refreshing to walk with the rank and file of the Ladies Garment Workers, whose president gets no car from his union, who by choice is one of the lowest salaried national labor leaders in the land, and whose union now disburses over $108 million in social services and payments and thus takes a heavy load off the tax burdened public.

Apparently there are a lot of people, still, who believe that virtue is its own reward. And then, there are a lot who don't. And they give away or ride in $5,000 cars paid for by the people.

Laura Dawson Bride Of Thomas Rolwing

NEW MADRID - Miss Laura Dixie Dawson of New Madrid, daughter of Mrs. Harold A. Dawson of New Madrid and the late Mr. Dawson, became the bride May 11 of Thomas Rolwing of Charleston. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Rolwing of Charleston.

The Rev. Bosco V. Westrich officiated in the nuptial Mass at Immaculate Conception church where the altar was adorned with vases of white carnations, banked with bouquets of huckleberry. Timothy Vowels of Charleston was organist and Mrs. Richard St. Mary Jr. was soloist.

Harold Arthur Dawson presented his sister in marriage. The bride wore an empire gown of white silk linen and crocheted lace with a chapel train secured at the back waistline. A double veil of illusion. She carried a cascade of stephanotis centered with two white cymbidium orchids.

Mrs. Mary Dawson Blom, the bride's sister, was matron of honor and another sister, Miss Jane Ellen Dawson, was maid of honor. Mrs. Larry Dotson of Cape Girardeau was bridesmaid. They wore gowns of pale yellow chiffon with moss green accents of satin ribbon at the empire waistlines, and they carried colonial bouquets of white daisies.

Mary Catherine McCown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. S. McCown III of Memphis, Tenn., was flower girl and ringbearer was George Gregory Voehringer, son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Voehringer of Memphis.

Francis David Rolwing of Charleston served his brother as best man and Elliott Hunter Rafferty and Clifford Hlugh Vowels, both of Charleston, were groomsmen. Ushers were Hugh Hunter Byrd of Charleston and Peter Joseph Dawson of New Madrid, brother of the bride.

At a reception held in the New Madrid Country Club, guests were served by Mrs. McCown III, and Mrs. George A. Voehringer, sisters of the bride, Miss Martha Rafferty, Miss Pat Thomas and Miss Virginia Thompson.

For their wedding trip to the South, Mrs. Rolwing wore a linen ensemble - a pink and beige printed sheath dress and matching beige coat.

The newlyweds are at home at 305 East Cypress in Charleston. He is vice-president of the Rolwing-Moxley Co. She is the child welfare worker in the Mississippi County Welfare Office at East Prairie.

Rolwing received his bachelor of science degree from St. Louis University after graduating from St. Henry's high school in Charleston. The new Mrs. Rolwing received her bachelor of arts degree from Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau following graduation from New Madrid high school.

Qualifications In Extra Session

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) Cheesbourg, Tucson, Ariz., a 500 mile auto race Thursday and Bill Puterbaugh, went into an extra session today at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway for the first time since 1952.

Rain, all but one day of the last three weeks, left the time trials schedule in a shambles. Nine cars qualified Saturday in high winds, headed by Mel Kenyon, Lebanon, Ind., at a modest 165.191 miles per hour. Eight spots remain open in the 33-car line-up.

The track was too wet for speed until well after the 6 p.m. EST scheduled close of time trials Sunday.

Rules permitted the Speedway to complete the line-up any way it saw fit, and it decided to let every healthy unqualified car — about 25 — make one more run. The 25 already qualified cars were ruled safe from "bumping" by any subsequent superior speeds.

Two provisional qualifications were made at dusk Sunday by veteran Bill Rain

Roxanna, Ill., 157.301 in a Gerhardt-Ford.

The consensus in the Speedway's Gasoline Alley was that it didn't make much difference who filled the last eight spots in the line-up.

The three Lotus turbines, driven by Joe Leonard, Graham Hill and Art Pollard, are considered the class of the field if they hold up for 500 miles.

Hill won the Grand Prix of Monaco Sunday in record time after taking the Spanish Grand Prix two weeks ago.

America also had a driver with a hot hand, Bobby Unser, Albuquerque, N.M., who will start beside Leonard and Hill in the front row Thursday, has won the last three U.S. Auto Club championship races. He will drive a turbocharged Offenhauser.

Showers Postpone HS Finals

The state title showdown between West Plains and Kansas City Oak Park was postponed Saturday because of heavy rains at Springfield. The game was rescheduled for today at 3 p.m.

West Plains reached the finals by defeating a tough Sedalia team by outslugging them, 7-5, in a game in which they collected 14 hits. The victory gave them a record of 20 wins and one defeat, best in the state.

The Zippers earlier this year beat the Sikeston Bulldogs, 5-2, to win the right to compete in state play.

The outstanding boys in West Plains last victory were Donnie Hawkins and Gaylord Gregory. Hawkins bled a two-run homer off Sedalia and Gregory drove in two runs with a single and was the winning pitcher for the Zippers.

Oak Park reached the finals by defeating the favorite Kirkwood team by coming from three runs behind to win 5-3. Five errors by the Pioneers from Kirkwood helped to account for most of Oak Park's runs. The victory moved their record to 20 for the year.

The postponement is expected to help the West Plains team. It will now be able to come back with its ace on the mound, Gregory. A great deal of West Plains success is due to his strong right arm.

Last year the West Plains team reached the semifinals before bowing out to a team from the St. Louis area that took second in state.

The game today is considered a tossup with the team getting

By The Associated Press
ST. LOUIS (AP) — "We get three runs ahead of somebody, Manager Gene Mauch laughed, "and we get a little goofy." Mauch presumably meant 1, not we, because the Philadelphia Phillies knew what to do.

What the Phillies did was powder the St. Louis Cardinals 9-3 Sunday. They added the last three runs in the ninth inning after taking a 6-3 lead in the fifth inning. Two of the runs in the fifth were charged against loser Hal Gilson, 0-1.

Then Mauch decided to make some defensive changes. But he made one change by accident and that led to a five-minute discussion with the umpires. Mauch wanted to put in Gary Sutherland at second, move Richie Allen to left and Tony Taylor to third.

"First of all," Mauch admitted, "I butchered it up. I was thinking Sutherland, and I told the umpire Sutherland. So Sutherland was in the game."

"Then I called for Don Lock and he went into center field (for Johnny Briggs). I didn't want Lock in the game and I don't know what I was thinking of."

It might have been the three-run lead, somebody said. And Mauch commented about how something like that could make the Phillies goofy.

Bob Lunn

Caps Title

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) —

Angie Lunn neither plays golf nor talks the game at home. But for 40 tense minutes she knew something her husband, Bob, didn't know about the $100,000 Memphis Open Golf Tournament.

Angie saw Bob sink a 12-foot eagle putt on the 16th hole and realized he had moved into a two-stroke lead. He didn't know he was on the verge Sunday of winning the $20,000 first prize until he parred the 18th green.

Lunn parred the next two holes, finished with a 12-underpar 65-68-68-67-268 and won the first tournament since he joined the tour last year.

"I watched on television in my motel room for a while, then went to the course and first saw him there at 15," Angie said. "I knew the eagle was important, but I wasn't thinking ahead that it would win for him."

"I felt a little weak on the 18th green when I knew I could win with a par," Lunn said. "It's probably fortunate I didn't know I was in front by two. Something might have happened."

Lunn, 23, of Sacramento, Calif., said he was planning on a birdie 4 when he made the eagle. He putted well throughout the tournament, making many two-to-five-foot putts for pars.

Monty Kaser, of Wichita, Kan., was second at 269 and won $12,000. Like Lunn, he is a former National Public Links champion.

The Tigers and A's battled to a 2-2 rain-abbreviated tie in Friday night's series opener. The Tigers won 2-1 Saturday night, but lost Kaline for two to three weeks when the injury-plagued outfielder was struck by a Lew Krause pitch and suffered a hairline fracture of his right forearm.

In the same game, Detroit second baseman Dick McAuliffe tossed his bat in disgust while running out a pop fly, tripped over the bat and severely bruised his thigh. He sat out Sunday's game, and slugging outfielder Willie Horton joined him on the sidelines in the fourth inning after injuring his leg while running out a bunt single.

Depleted by the injuries, the Tigers fell behind 6-0 they scored twice in the fifth and struck for four runs in the sixth to knot it at 6-6.

After Dick Tracewski drove in the tying run with a sacrifice fly, Oakland reliever Jack Aker hit Jim Northrup on the back of the batting helmet with a mound.

Northrup charged the mound and flattened Aker with a flurry of punches as both benches emptied. Horton emerged from the Tigers' dugout in his stocking feet, ready to do battle. Krause raced from the Oakland bench to the middle of the

Highlights and Sidelights from Our State Capitol

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—An agreement between the Missouri Department of Agriculture and the U. S. Department of Agriculture has given a shot in the arm to the state's meat inspection program.

The federal government will pay up to half the cost of inspection in nearly 600 meat and poultry slaughtering and processing plants that do business entirely within Missouri.

Under the terms of the federal Wholesome Meat Act of 1967, states were given two years to set up their own inspection programs to meet federal standards. The Missouri program, started the first of this year, had been in doubt after the Legislature slashed its appropriation during the recent special session.

Dr. George C. Stiles, state veterinarian, said the department will continue to hire and train eight inspectors each month. He said federal participation will allow the state to employ more than 25 inspectors authorized by the Legislature in March.

Stiles said the inspection program will be expanded in steps. The first objective will be to require overall sanitation in the slaughtering and processing plants. Then state inspectors will begin inspection of each animal both before and after it is slaughtered. The final step will be inspection of processing procedures.

Plants engaged only in custom slaughtering of animals for consumption by the owner will be exempt from the before-and-after-death inspection, Stiles added.

During discussions between federal and state officials, teams of inspectors from the USDA and the state department inspected 30 plants within the state. The major criticism indicated in their reports was the lack of sanitation.

Dr. Stiles said the unsanitary conditions revealed by the reports are not a major health threat but must be corrected to meet federal standards. Dr. H. E. McCutchan, assistant state veterinarian, emphasized that conditions are "quite acceptable for never having been under strict supervision."

"These plants have had no inspection before this," he said. "There was no one to go in and point out these problems to them."

"The meat industry in Missouri is in good shape," Dr. Stiles said. "Sure, some plants will have to spend some money to meet federal standards. But the industry has cooperated with us. The welcome inspection because it adds prestige to their product."

Although federal standards will be used, the state will administer the inspection, Dr. Stiles said. "A few things in the federal standards aren't really workable," he said, "and the federal government realizes this. The state can actually lead in the state-federal program by developing a practical, flexible program."

"I think this is a good point to start," Dr. Stiles continued. "From now on the responsibility is ours. A year from now the conditions in the meat industry will have to be better. The reports show that inspection is needed."

Ozark Regional Commission Grants Funds To Missouri

The Ozark Regional Commission gathered in Jefferson City early this month for their regular meeting to discuss administration problems and allocation of federal grants.

The Commission, composed from representatives from the four-state Ozark area, declared two grants for the state of Missouri, both going to construct improvements in the Poplar Bluff area. A new civic center and a vocational training center will be built there.

The Ozark Regional Commission is officially composed of the governors of the four Ozark area states — Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Kansas. However, administrative officials appointed by the governors do the work of the commission.

Originated in President Johnson's War on Poverty program, the commission is following an aid program similar to the one used in Appalachia as part of the President's plan for federal economic assistance to regional underdeveloped areas.

Medals in Honor of Disney Authorized

WASHINGTON (AP)—Medals honoring the late Walt Disney, the entertainment genius who raised animated cartoons to the level of an art form, will be struck under a bill signed by President Johnson.

One gold medal and up to 100,000 bronze ones are authorized under the bill Johnson signed Friday. They would not be produced at government expense.

The gold medal would be presented to Disney's widow. The others would be distributed by the California Institute of Arts, a college-level institution founded by Disney.

Rik Leslie Named to Advisory Panel

Rik Leslie of the Leslie Insurance Agency, has been named to serve on the St. Louis branch advisory panel of the Continental - National - American Insurance Group, whose branch office in St. Louis serves Eastern Missouri and Western Illinois.

The panel was created to achieve a better understanding of the insurance industry and develop a better agency-company relationship.

The first working meeting will be Tuesday in St. Louis.

College Will Invest $240,000

CAPE GIRARDEAU—Authority was given Southeast Missouri State College administration to investigate means of permanent investment of the $240,000 bequest given the college by the late Earl G. Gramling of Cape Girardeau at a meeting of the board of regents.

Dr. Mark F. Scully, college president, said approval was given to contact a St. Louis bank which specializes in such investments.

The money is now invested in treasury bills, Dr. Scully said, and is intended for scholarships to students interested in the fields of government and veterinary.

Also considered, Dr. Scully said, was the salary level of the faculty. He said the board will request in the next college budget a seven per cent increase above the average of $10,168 which will be paid next academic year.

The board will advertise in the next few days for sale of +3½ million in bonds for construction of the final two high-rise units on the north campus.

Easter Island's only regular contact with the outside world is a supply and mail ship sent once a year by the Chilean Navy, which administers this remote outpost.

Humphrey Spirits Sunny Despite Rain

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Although a driving rain Saturday morning forced him to dedicate the Gateway Arch from underground, and kept him pinned in a sheltered area at the south leg of the Arch for about 20 minutes afterward, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said his St. Louis visit was "filled with sunshine."

"It didn't rain at all," he told a banquet crowd after the dedication.

Mayor A. J. Cervantes called the rain a "Kansas City mist that overcame St. Louis." It kept away thousands of persons from the long-awaited dedication.

Finally a crowd of about 600 persons jammed into the visitors center beneath the Arch. Much of a day-long program had to be canceled.

Humphrey called the Arch a symbol to the century that Americans spent awakening their land. He said the Arch was also the renewal of a commitment "to conserve and enrich the America we are creating in the cities, in the suburban areas, in the rural areas — that quality of life which characterized our past."

After giving due credit to the many persons whose efforts made the towering Arch possible, Mayor Cervantes noted that $6 million from the federal government is still needed to finish the job.

Humphrey, grinned at area Congressmen present and said: "You got the message. Matching funds are still needed. Mr. Mayor, you made it very clear."

The sunshine Humphrey spoke of at the banquet was of the political variety. Asked about a statement attributed to Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes that 50 of the state's 60 delegate votes would go to him, Humphrey said, "I'm pleased to hear he said that."

Reflecting once more on the 630-foot Arch, I couldn't help but get a spiritual feeling. It's so beautiful and simple. The good things in life are simple."

He said the Arch represents "an open society with room for everyone, just one citizenship. That's the greatest honor in the world, to be a citizen of the United States."

The weather cleared in the afternoon and Humphrey was given a brass band birthday party at the airport before leaving for Milwaukee.

He admitted to being 57 on Monday, looked at a huge birthday cake and said, "It looks mighty good. I've had a delicious and sweet time in St. Louis."

The Arch is the center piece in the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial which commemorates the Louisiana Purchase which brought much of the Western portion of the continent into the United States.

they were not supplied by the tank truck drivers.

By Saturday, it was impossible to buy gasoline in Paris except in filling stations reserved for doctors — marked with red crosses — and others reserved for drivers of food trucks.

An important reason for the absence of panic was that the electric plant workers, while on strike, did not cut the power supply as they have in the past. They apparently kept a power cut as a threat against the government in case negotiations came to a deadlock.

LBJ Drops Formalities For Gorton

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson has pushed protocol aside in welcoming visiting Prime Minister John Gorton of Australia for talks believed sure to center on Vietnam, the Paris peace talks and future U.S. policy in Asia.

The prime minister's plane had scarcely touched down at nearby Andrews Air Force Base, Md., before Johnson hosted Gorton and his wife on an informal — and unscheduled — Potomac River cruise aboard the presidential yacht Sequoia.

The formal schedule called for the President and Mrs.

Johnson to greet Gorton and his American wife, Bettina, with a red-carpet ceremony and a 19-gun salute at the White House today.

The ceremony was still on tap but Johnson didn't wait for protocol to talk over the future with the head of a strongly allied and friendly government. Although Johnson has met with more than 60 heads of government during his presidency, he never before had made such an informal gesture of friendship.

On his arrival at Andrews, the 56-year old prime minister, a ruggedly handsome World War II fighter pilot who survived two crashes in combat, said he would like most to establish "the same contact and continuity with the President and his administration and his possible successors that my predecessor established."

The reference was to the late Prime Minister Harold Holt, who disappeared last December while swimming in the Australian surf. Holt had pledged his administration to be "all the way with LBJ" on the Vietnam war policies of this country.

Gorton made clear on his arrival from Honolulu and San Francisco Sunday night that he would like to see some of the American presidential candidates who conceivably could change the course of U.S. policy after next January.

No schedules were announced but there was a strong possibility he would meet Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., after leaving Washington Wednesday morning for New York City.

President Johnson and his top aides are expected to stress in talks with Gorton that the United States is bound by its defense commitments under the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) and ANZUS, the Australia-New Zealand-U.S. defense alliance on the Pacific, no matter who is president.

Peace Panel Hopes Public Will Be Patient

WASHINGTON (AP)—A blue-ribbon citizens group including former President Dwight D. Eisenhower voiced fear today that many Americans have been misled into expecting "too much, too soon" from U.S.-North Vietnamese talks in Paris.

Americans think of negotiations as a road to peace but there is unmistakable evidence Hanoi's leaders consider negotiations as another way to fight a war, said a special panel of the Citizens Committee for Peace with Freedom in Vietnam.

It warned against expecting to "win at the conference table what we have not won on the battlefield" and against "losing

The Daily Standard, Sikeston, Mo.
Monday, May 27, 1968

at the conference table what we have fought so hard, and given so much, to protect."

While the group favored exploring for "a reasonable time" prospects for a peaceful settlement, it rated poor the chances for productive negotiations now.

The 1,700-word statement on "Negotiations: Hopes versus Realities" was issued by a 14-man special panel on negotiations.

The citizens committee was organized last fall by former Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., and includes both living ex-presidents—Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman—in its nationally known membership of about 190.

It labels itself a nonpartisan group setting forth the views of the "silent center" of U.S. public opinion on Vietnam as distinguished from vocal critics of the right and left. Its past expressions have been generally favorable toward Johnson administration policy.

Credit Disclosure Bill at a Glance

WASHINGTON (AP)—Here are key provisions of a credit disclosure bill passed by Congress Wednesday:

—Stores extending credit, and financial institutions lending money, must disclose annual interest rate figured on declining balance of obligation and total cost of the credit in dollars and cents over full life of the credit. Exempted are first mortgages on homes, purchases of $75 or less when credit charges don't exceed $5 and purchases of more than $75 when credit charges don't exceed $7.50.

—Stores offering open-end or revolving credit plans must state full annual rate plus monthly rate.

—Homeowners contracting for home improvements financed by first or second mortgages have three days to cancel the deal.

—Stores advertising installment loans must give annual interest rate, cash price, number of payments and their due dates.

—When a customer's pay is attached or garnished, the first $48 of pay is exempt, as is 75 per cent of all take-home pay. No employee could be fired for a single garnishment.

—Effective dates: For credit disclosure section, July 1, 1969; for garnishment provision, July 1, 1970.

Ridley said receiving 10 per cent of the Republican vote would help establish Rockefeller as a solid contender for the nomination. Few involved politicians shared this view.

Bubb was not optimistic that the Rockefeller vote would challenge the majority that former Vice President Richard M. Nixon seems likely to record.

Nixon who shares the ballot with Reagan, has been taking precautions against a dip in the average of about 70 per cent of the vote that he has maintained in four previous primaries. He returns Friday for more campaigning in search of Oregon's 18 convention votes.

Nixon's supporters appear confident.

Teamsters Union Power Fight Brews

WASHINGTON (AP) — Frank E. Fitzsimmons, sitting in as Teamsters Union president for the imprisoned James R. Hoffa, hints he intends to keep control of the world's biggest union until he can run for election to succeed Hoffa.

Denying a published report that he plans to retire before the next convention of the 1.9 million-member Teamsters in 1971, Fitzsimmons, 60, said, "I will be at this business for years to come."

Fitzsimmons' statement, published in the Teamsters' magazine, appeared to confirm other reports that most top union officials discount the possibility of Hoffa getting freed in time for a convention bid to return to power.

"I hope to return," Hoffa said 14 months ago when he was carted off to the Lewisburg, Pa., federal penitentiary to serve an eight-year jury-tampering sentence.

But while Hoffa still retains the title of president, without the $100,000-a-year salary, his firm control of the union is gone.

Hoffa still is fighting a five-year federal fraud sentence in connection with the use of union pension funds. This is separate from the jury-tampering conviction.

Most Teamsters leaders believe if Hoffa is paroled, it won't be until after the June 1971 convention, when his five-year term as president runs out.

But Fitzsimmons, personally chosen by Hoffa to serve as acting president, isn't expected to have clear sailing to win the Teamsters' presidency in his own right.

Much of the power under Hoffa's firm central control of the union has slipped back to 12 regional vice presidents, who operate with a minimum of consultation with Fitzsimmons.

Several vice presidents—including Harold Gibbons of St. Louis, Murray Miller of Dallas and Ray Schoessling of Chicago—are expected to surface with presidential ambitions of their own by convention time.

With the convention three years away, informed sources are already predicting a wide open convention fight to replace Hoffa as president.

But the fight isn't likely to begin before then. Hoffa, at the 1966 convention eight months before going to prison, directed the reviving of the Teamsters constitution to block any power play for the presidency unless both he and Fitzsimmons resign.

There appears no possibility that either of them will and so the Teamsters vice presidents, virtually powerless to move before the convention, are biding their time.

Paris Talks Remote to Peck's Mob

CAI LAY, Vietnam (AP) — The day peace talks started in Paris, Capt. Mike Peck led 100 Americans on a daylong trek through the mucky paddyfields and steaming nipa palms of the Mekong Delta.

It was a frustrating search along the sluggish Bao Ba River for an enemy hideout that was never found. The sun was blistering and the company ran out of fresh water, drinking stinking canal water made worse tasting by bitter purification tablets. There was no time to eat.

The men were beat when they came back to their bunkered camp at sundown. They gulped down a hot meal and dropped off to sleep on dirty blankets, still grimy from the delta's mud.

"It was just another day, a typical dry-hole," the husky, 27-year-old company commander recalled. "Nobody even mentioned the peace talks. I don't think my 'hoodlums' gave it a thought."

Peck's "hoodlums"—he sometimes also calls them "my merry mob"—are almost all draftees, many of them teen-agers. A sergeant of 24 considers himself a father-figure. For them, the diplomatic convolutions of Paris are remote and unreal—as most of the world becomes unreal to an infantryman whose life depends on his rifle and immediate buddies.

Since the Americans and North Vietnamese began talking in Paris, the company has been on the march daily, seeking guerrillas who slip along canals and through villages they have known since childhood. At night the Americans put out ambushes and roaming, six-man "killer patrols."

With constant movement a part of his life, an infantryman in Vietnam has few benchmarks to judge time. Ask him what he has done since the peace talks started May 13 and he will reply, "How long ago was that?"

"Everything sort of blends in out here," says Peck, who is from Milford, Ohio, speaks French and English, served an exchange tour with the French army's paratroops and is on his second tour in Vietnam.

"You know," said Pfc. Dwight Shuey, a 20-year-old from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., "we're not as bad as we sound. We do try to follow things. We talk about the peace talks sometimes but the war still goes on. It's the war we think about mostly."

"I do believe in the cause of this war," Shuey said. "I think we should be here. A lot of times I don't agree with how it is being fought but I think we should be here."

His platoon sergeant, William Gulden of Pennington, N.J., a husky 24-year-old who plans to go home to study psychology, agreed, with reservations.

"Most of the guys couldn't care less what happens in Paris," he shrugged. "They know it won't affect anybody here for a long, long time."

Suggestions Scarce

LIBERTY, Mo. (AP) — Three weeks ago Fred Snyder, city administrator, put up seven suggestions boxes in stores, banks and filling stations so people could disclose their gripes.

He opened the boxes Friday and found only one cigar wrapper.

"That's all we got," Snyder said. "Needless to say, I was disappointed — that we didn't get the whole cigar."

Child Care Taught Eighth Graders

Students of the eighth grade home economics classes, taught by Mrs. William Sapp, spent two days visiting the kindergarten and elementary schools to observe the children up to the second grade in study and play habits.

In reading sessions they used references on sitting safely, understanding babies and little children.

The eighth grade students were shown films on keeping children happy and safe. The large age class then went to the schools to observe the younger children and brought with them improvised toys they had made.

They were taught how to hold a baby and change a diaper. The class passed a written test. The girls brought with them a tote bag for supplies, and bean bags for play, after which they read stories to the younger children for their baby sitting experience.

Schools visited were the Head Start program, Presbyterian and Methodist kindergartens, Matthews, Lee Hunter and Southwest schools.

lobsters or overgrown bunches of lettuce.

I shall also miss the robot of "Lost in Space," which over two seasons developed a lovable personality and in one episode was involved in a romance of sorts with a lady computer.

"Tarzan," if watched in the proper mood and not lacked too often, has also been a frequent source of amusement.

All of these, of course, were potboilers and primarily designed to attract the young audiences, but often in their earnest ways they were funnier than the most conscientious comedy shows.

Today none of the networks makes any bones about reruns, and they occupy four or five months of the year.

Only in the cases of the special programs are any attempts made these days to dress up the rebroadcasts. Reruns of specials are called, by all three networks, "encore showings," suggesting that they have been brought back by popular demand.

With reruns in full bloom, the public is getting a last chance to see some shows that will quietly depart from the networks in September.

Somewhat, after they have been canceled, they sometimes pack a little more charm. Some shows, like "Cowboy in Africa" will disappear without more than a ripple, but others will be missed.

This viewer, while hardly among the faithful fans, will miss "Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea," partly for its interesting special effects and trick photography, but more for its ingenious assortment of monsters that, week after week, placed the submarine and its crew in deadly peril. My favorites were the scary ones that looked like outside boiled

When Jerry Lester and a big blonde named Dagmar kept the audiences awake and laughing into the small hours?

If you do, you are probably in that group of citizens that television calls "older," and you also probably remember when summer reruns came during a period of only about 13 weeks and were presented with a bit of a flourish as "The Best of Groucho" or "The Best of Draget."

Dirksen Bid to Keep Subversive Board Flounders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen has lost another round in his dogged bid to keep the moribund Subversive Activities Control Board alive beyond this year.

A desk-thumping, shouting speech in which Dirksen suggested he had backing from President Johnson and railed at Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark failed to rally enough Senate support for the Illinois Republican's cause.

Dirksen had proposed a crime control bill amendment that would allow the attorney-general of each of the 50 states to prosecute alleged subversive organizations before the board.

But amid opponents' complaints that the precedent-shattering approach went too far, the Senate turned him down, 49 to 27.

The board was the subject of widespread publicity last year with the disclosure it had not handled any business for nearly two years.

Its five members each draw $26,000 a year.

The agency was spotlighted in mid-1967 when it was learned that the latest appointee was a 29-year-old accountant, Simon F. Mellich Jr., who had married one of President Johnson's secretaries.

That development prompted inquiries into the board's operations. When its inactive status was disclosed, cries arose in Congress for its abolition.

But Dirksen moved to preserve it. He finally won approval of a measure providing that it continue in operation provided at least one case was brought before it by next Dec. 31.

Otherwise, it would go out of business next June 30.

The agency was set up 17 years ago during the anti-Communist activity sparked by the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R-Wis.

Its original authority was to identify subversives and subversive organizations and compel them to register.

But Supreme Court decisions have stricken most of the basic authority of the agency.

Dirksen charged that Clark was "subverting and distorting" the intent of Congress by not bringing any cases before the SACB.

Lindsay Hits Trail for Rockefeller

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, a proxy campaigning for Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, moved into Oregon today, but the forces of Richard M. Nixon professed little concern.

Lindsay, who got financial assistance from Rockefeller in his campaign for mayor three years ago, has a day of appearances in Portland, Eugene and Corvallis to seek write-in votes for the absent governor in next Tuesday's GOP presidential primary.

But the battle was only of percentages, with promoters of Rockefeller and the organization of another absentee, California Gov. Ronald Reagan, acknowledging Nixon would win easily.

A Nixon lieutenant said the goal of the former vice president is to outpoll the combined total of Reagan and Rockefeller.

Humphrey Polls Well in Pennsylvania

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey is the overwhelming presidential choice of committed Pennsylvania Democratic convention delegates, an Associated Press poll showed today.

The poll showed him running 27 to 1 ahead of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and 3 to 1 in front of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy.

Pennsylvania, with 162 delegates, will have 130 votes at the party's national convention in Chicago this August. This is about 10 per cent of the number needed to win the nomination.

The delegation is the third largest among the states.

The AP mail and telephone survey lists these Pennsylvania votes:

Humphrey 63 3/4, McCarthy 1 9/16, Kennedy 2 1/4, uncommitted or untraced 45.

It is almost a clear majority with a third of the votes still up for grabs.

Humphrey supporters in the big industrial state are headed by former Gov. George M. Leader, and they claim that nearly all of those who still have "no choice" will be with the vice president at the convention's first roll call.

Humphrey, reached at Washington, said he preferred not to comment on the AP poll and would rather wait until the delegates themselves take some definitive action.

This could come today in Harrisburg.

A formal meeting of Pennsylvania delegates has been scheduled—and it is possible the leaders of the state organization, who have tried to maintain official neutrality, may leap on the Humphrey bandwagon.

The strong Pennsylvania support for Humphrey, in a state that has backed a Democrat in every presidential election since 1932 except when Dwight D. Eisenhower ran in 1952 and 1956, is bound to give a powerful thrust to the vice president's nomination drive.

All but one of the McCarthy delegates were elected at the April primary, in opposition to organization-backed choices.

Of the delegates 108 will have 3/4 of a vote each, 44 will have one vote while 10 will have 1/2 vote.

Mary Martin Hits Road In Big Way

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Mary Martin says "let's hit the road," she implies no half-way measures. Here is the itinerary she and Robert Preston are following with their Broadway hit, "I Do! I Do!"

Rochester, Indianapolis, Minneapolis, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Vancouver, B.C., Seattle, Portland, St. Louis, Phoenix, Omaha, St. Paul, Milwaukee, Kansas City, Dallas, Houston, Cleveland, Memphis, Charlotte, Greensboro, Richmond, Washington, D.C., Baltimore, Detroit, Philadelphia, Raleigh, Miami, Jacksonville, Hershey, Pa.

That will take them through March 1969. Still unbooked are April and May, after which the tour ends and Mary and her husband, Richard Halliday, plan to spend two years on their ranch in Brazil. "That is a promise we made to each other; we even signed a paper to that effect on our last anniversary," she insists.

Mary Martin is the last of the great Broadway stars to devote her talents to "the road," that is, to tour the major American cities with a play that has met with success in New York. Oddly enough, she fell in love with the traveling bug during her brief movie career.

"It was after I had made 'The Great Victor Herbert,' and Paramount sent Allan Jones and me out on the road to publicize it," she recalled. "We traveled all over, playing seven shows a day! But I loved it. And while I was in Houston, I was lucky enough to meet Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, who were traveling with 'Taming of the Shrew'."

"I naturally worshipped them as greats of the theater, and I listened to everything they said. One thing they told me was: 'If you should go back to the theater, be sure to go on the road with your plays. You will find the audiences enormously stimulating, and those people will come to see you whenever they visit New York.'"

"As it turned out, I decided I did prefer the theater. I left films and never went back except for doing 'My Heart Belongs to Daddy' for Cole Porter (in the film biography, 'Night and Day.')"

Miss Martin has toured in "One Touch of Venus," "Annie Get Your Gun," "Peter Pan," "Kind Sir," "Skin of Our Teeth," "Hello, Dolly!" and with her own concert, which visited 87 cities. She didn't tour with her two biggest hits, "South Pacific" and "The Sound of Music," because they remained in New York too long.

"The second year of a New York show is miserable," she remarked. "No matter how much you like the play, you are faced with going down the same street, entering the same stage door and using the same dressing room until you almost go out of your mind."

"That's why I prefer to go on the road in the second year. Sure, the traveling is rough, but at least you're looking at the show through a different frame every week. And the audiences can be a revelation."

"Take 'I Do! I Do.' It's a show about marriage—how two people can live together for 50 years and somehow survive all the problems that confront them. Now in New York we got laughs in the right places and the audiences were usually warm. But New Yorkers go to the theater because it's the thing to do. They don't necessarily go for enjoyment."

"The difference on the road is that the people are buying tickets to see Bob and me. They truly want to see the show. And the audience response is unbelievable. They seem to accept the fact that a show about two old married people can be enjoyable."

Spock Trial Goes Into Second Week

BOSTON (AP) — What apparently will be a long trial for Dr. Benjamin Spock and four codefendants entered its second week today.

Prosecution testimony in the draft evasion conspiracy case has centered on a meeting last October inside the Department of Justice building in Washington.

An FBI agent from Washington was scheduled to testify for the government following the weekend recess.

On trial with 65-year-old baby doctor Dr. Yale Chaplain William Sloane Coffin Jr., 43, Michael Ferber, 23, a Harvard graduate student, Mitchell Goodman, 44, a New York writer and teacher, and Marcus Raskin, 33, a Washington research director.

If convicted of charges of conspiring to "aid, abet and counsel" youths to avoid the draft they could receive maximum sentences of five year prison terms and $10,000 fines.

The trial recessed Friday after testimony by John McDonough, an assistant deputy U.S. attorney general, who said Spock, Coffin, Goodman and Raskin demanded last Oct. 20 that he accept from them a briefcase filled with draft cards and facsimiles.

"I told them I could not and would not accept the briefcase," McDonough testified.

McDonough said Raskin told him the draft cards were evidence of a federal law violation and that it was his duty to receive them.

McDonough said he harvested 96 per cent of the summoned two FBI agents to take custody of the briefcase.

Latest estimates are that it may take the government as long as a month to present its evidence.

There's been no estimate of how long it will take the defense to present its side, but it could run for several days.

Man Arrested for Noisy Outburst

Near Truman Home

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — The vociferous demands of a man who identified himself as Harry B. Hammond, 38, of Independence, brought his arrest Saturday near the home of former president Harry Truman.

Police and Secret Service agents removed the man from the area after he had loudly called for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to come to the front steps of the Truman home.

He was asked how he arrived at the home and he told police he came in a 1967 model school bus. The bus had the name "Bartow County School District" painted on its side, and he said he had stolen the bus in Bartow County, Georgia.

Federal authorities began checking on the bus and the man was booked by police on a charge of being drunk in public.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Some burglars with truly continental taste buds made off with a haul from a Phoenix tavern. Officers said they stole 23 cases of American beer, as well as an assortment of Mexican tamales and Polish sausages.

Marines at Khe Sanh Wanted To Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Marine colonel says that although outnumbered four to one by enemy forces surrounding the Khe Sanh outpost in Vietnam earlier this year, his men wanted to attack.

The situation was not comparable to the Dienbienphu situation of 1954 in which the French met disastrous defeat at the hands of Ho Chi Minh, said Col. David E. Lownds.

"I'd be fibbing to you if I said the kids didn't want to go (on the attack)," Lownds said Friday.

Khe Sanh, a Marine outpost below the Demilitarized Zone, overlooked major Communist infiltration routes into the northern provinces of South Vietnam. The Khe Sanh siege lasted from January to mid-March.

The slender, graying colonel told a news conference higher military authorities decided on what he called a "set piece battle" primarily concerned with the defense of Khe Sanh.

But without appearing to be critical, he said, "If I had my druthers I'd rather be out attacking."

He said his mission to defend did not change during the siege. When the outpost came under heavy attack, there was some questioning of the soundness of the U.S. strategy.

However, Lownds said, it would be wrong to think the Marines had been completely "buttoned up" by the 20,000 enemy troops. He said his men were able to conduct armed patrols nearly a mile outside the post.

"I really controlled all the critical terrain around the base," he said.

Lownds said that as to the question of his men attacking, top military strategists had to consider the large numbers of North Vietnamese that would have joined in the battle.

Lownds had four battalions, including South Vietnam's 37th Rangers.

The North Vietnamese never launched a major attack because of strong U.S. air support and firepower, Lownds said. But the enemy did make several battalion-sized probes.

Lownds was awarded the Navy Cross Friday in a ceremony at the Marine Barracks.

The Hayti Women's club will sponsor the fifth annual Miss Missouri Boothel beauty pageant at the picnic.

Civic organizations and interested businesses are invited to enter contestants. For further information, contact Mrs. David King, chairman of the pageant, at 359-0511 or 325 South Third St., Hayti.

Group Selected to Seek More Doctors

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A special study group has been set up by the Missouri State Medical Association with the aim of getting more doctors in Missouri.

The program was announced Monday by the association's president, Dr. David N. Kerr of St. Louis. He will serve on the committee along with:

Dr. Hector W. Benoit Jr. of Kansas City, immediate past president of the association; Dr. Doyle McCraw of Bolivar, president-elect; Dr. Joseph Fischer of St. Joseph, chairman of the association's council, and Dr. Gerald Miller of Kansas City, vice chairman of the council. Dr. Kerr said the association is on record for establishment of a new medical school in Kansas City and other steps to increase the number of doctors in the state.

The Daily Standard, Sikeston, Mo. Monday, May 27, 1968

MBABANE, Swaziland (AP) — This tiny landlocked colony, Britain's last outpost in Africa and due for independence in September, is giving refuge to 93 members of African nationalist organizations, a police special branch spokesman disclosed.

There are 37 refugees from Frelimo, three from Udenamo, 20 from the Pan African Congress, 30 from the African National Congress and three from the African Resistance Movement.

Insurance Firm

Investments Rise
NEW YORK — Metropolitan Life Insurance Company invested $4,889,150 in home and business mortgages in Missouri through local mortgage correspondents during the first three months of 1968, the company announced.

This brought the company's total mortgage investment in the state to $145,150,000 as of April 1, 1968.

Metropolitan Life's mortgage correspondents for Missouri and the amounts they disbursed for the company during the January-April period included Mercantile Mortgage Co., $107,150 in the Sikeston area.

FLY THIS FLAG ON YOUR HOME MEMORIAL DAY - MAY 30 RECIPE FOR HOMEMADE OLD GLORY ... AMERICAN STYLE!

Ingredients (Mix as directed)

- 2 Yards of White Bunting
- 2 Yards of Red Bunting
- 1 Yard of White Starred Blue Bunting
- 1 Canvas Heading
- 2 Brass Grommets
- Thread
- 1 Six-foot, 2-piece Staff
- 1 Decorative Staff Top
- 1 Heavy Cord Halyard
- 1 Heavy Metal Mounting Bracket
- 3 Screws

DIRECTIONS:

Cut red and white bunting into narrow strips. Cut white starred bunting into rectangle containing 50 stars. Stitch together 13 stripes, seven red and six white. Stitch star field into position on stripes. Sew on heading. Affix brass grommets. Tie on cord halyard and mount on staff. Screw permanent bracket to door or window. Put mounted flag into bracket. Flag should be raised in the morning, lowered each night. Now you have a working do-it-yourself flag set which should fly on every American home on every national holiday. There are over twenty holidays on which the flag should fly.

When this flag flies on a home it says AMERICANS LIVE HERE. They love their country. They remember the sacrifices made by so many to bring their country so far along the road of history. The fifty-six signers of the Declaration of Independence. The framers of the Bill of Rights. The writers of the constitution. They remember Francis Scott Key and the birth of the Star Spangled Banner on a black night at Fort McHenry. They fly their flag to honor Washington in the Wilderness, Lincoln at Gettysburg. John Paul Jones and Paul Revere. Old Glory symbolizes all the countless unknown Americans at Valley Forge and York Town, New Orleans, Tripoli, Omaha Beach and Iwo Jima, South Korea and Vietnam. Victories and heartaches, successes and failures. They remember.

These are the things for which Old Glory stands.

We believe every home should fly the flag on every national holiday. So that you don't have to turn Betsy Rossy and make your own... we offer a fine home flag set at our cost as a patriotic public service. Buy one and fly one. Mail your order or come in for yours. For your convenience a flag coupon is included below. Snip it out and bring it in, now.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

THE BASIC advantages of the two-story home have been incorporated in Plan HA547P sleeping privacy and the economy of building up instead of out. Here, the second floor has been placed over the garage, making an unusual exterior. For the sake of privacy, the large glass expanses open to the two rear patios. Adjoining the living room, with its cathedral ceiling, is a dining room which is slightly elevated from the living room. There are 1,089 square feet on the first floor and 1,042 square feet on the second floor. Architect is Samuel Paul, 89-30 161 St., Jamaica, N. Y.

POOR PLACE FOR PLANT
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Some city court workers were suspicious when they saw a "funny-looking" plant growing out from behind a small potted tree by the door in their building. A check confirmed their suspicions that it was a marijuana plant. No one could figure out how it got there.

If you think staying in school is tough, listen to someone who quit.

"Sure you can get work if you quit school. Real no-where work. At $50 or $60 a week. Ever try living on that? But if you don't have a diploma, you just have to sit there and get stepped on. You don't get moved up, even if you can do a lot of things my boss was supposed to. But she was making the money—about twice as much as me. Finally, I went back to school and worked full time, too. That wasn't much fun, either. But it was something I had to do. You just don't realize how important an education is until you try to get along without one."

CYNTHIA RODRIGUEZ
Based on an interview taped April 6, 1967

To get a good job, you need a good education. So if you're in school, stay there. If you've quit, find out how to get more training. See your State Employment Service or Youth Opportunity Center.

from
The Upper Room

Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid. (Matthew 5:14) PRAYER: Dear Lord, thank You for the light of Christ. Help it shine through us that others may see Christ's way in our way. In the name of Him who is the way. Amen.

If You Were the Judge

Chase Unrewarded

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

After George courted Mabel and they got married, Mabel began courting George. Sue sued him for a divorce and was awarded $300 a week as alimony. George, however, looked upon alimony as taxation without representation and tried to avoid paying it. Sometimes he'd end Mabel $50 and sometimes he'd send her $75. But never did he send her $300 as directed.

The result? Mabel was constantly chasing after George to collect. It amounted to $5,000 and she finally took him to court. In addition, she demanded that George be ordered to pay her an extra $5,000 as punitive damages.

"He should be punished for trying to wear me down," she told the Judge. "He figured that if he made me chase him around long enough to collect my alimony, I'd give up and take less than the court awarded me. Now that I've caught him, he should be slapped down."

"While I may have been guilty of matrimony," was George's answer, "I can't be punished for it. Making me pay alimony is punishment enough."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make George pay punitive damages for trying to wear down his former wife?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a man cannot be required to pay punitive damages for not paying alimony regardless of his motives in not paying it.

Besides, the judge added, if it was George's motive to wear down his former wife, he obviously hadn't succeeded. (Based upon a 1966 District of Columbia Decision)

Two Trips to Doctor
Urged to Thaw Ice

Dear Ann Landers: I'm getting pretty sick of your pat large home and have taken in six answers. They are beginning to sound as if you crank them out with me. They are all fine of a machine. I refer specifically women and I would thoroughly to your replies to husbands who enjoy our evening meal if it complain about iceberg wives. weren't for my husband.

My wife has been a stationary snowdrift from the day we married. For 14 years I have put up with her excuses and "duty" expressions of marital on the table he eats all the olives "bliss." I first started to kid her about finding satisfaction elsewhere if she didn't warm up. I bring the vegetable dish in the time I brings himself. By the time I bring in the meat he is on his second helping of answer was, "I don't care what you do as long as you don't bother ME."

I am 35. My wife 33. This is too young to dry up and blow away. She is an excellent mother, a fine housekeeper, to tell him how to eat. Naturally I would never correct him in front of the she is more than cold - she's his behavior. What can I do about it? -- MARRIED TO A HOG

Be practical and give me an answer that does more than take up two inches of newspaper space. -- STARVATION DIET

Dear S. D.: Many are cold but few are frozen. Your wife is probably the product of a guilt-ridden, inhibited mother who believed all men were beasts because that's what HER mother told her.

You say your wife is an iceberg. This is an apt description in more ways than one. Four-fifths of an iceberg is below the surface. Your job is to get acquainted with the whole woman.

Your iceberg -- I mean your wife -- should talk to her doctor. She is not living up to her responsibilities to you. Furthermore, she is cheating herself. You should see a doctor, too. A French philosopher once said, "There are no cold women -- only clumsy men."

Confidential to Dying To Know: Don't die. It won't help, below the surface. The identity of those who write to me.

Today In U.S. History

Today is Monday, May 27, the 148th day of 1968. There are 218 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1941, the British navy sank the German battleship Bismarck, with a loss of 2,300 lives. The Bismarck had been pursued more than 1,700 miles after sinking the HMS Hood three days earlier.

On this date: In 1860, a force under the Italian patriot, Giuseppe Garibaldi, invaded Sicily and captured Palermo.

In 1905, a Russian fleet of 32 vessels was wiped out by the Japanese.

In 1936, the British liner Queen Mary began its maiden transatlantic voyage.

In 1937, the Golden Gate Bridge was opened at San Francisco.

In 1945, more than 100 crewmen were killed in an explosion aboard the U.S. aircraft carrier Bennington off the coast of Rhode Island.

In 1964, Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru died in New Delhi.

Ten years ago—The U.N. Security Council postponed debate on a conflict between Lebanon and the United Arab Republic to permit the Arab League to consider the issues.

Five years ago—The former Mau Mau leader, Jomo Kenyatta, became Kenya's first prime minister.

One year ago—The U.S. aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy was christened by the late president's daughter, Caroline.

Candidates Don't Agree on Tax Hike

Seven of the 14 candidates for U. S. representative from the 10th Congressional district appeared at a meeting Saturday night to answer question on three subjects.

Appearing were Democrats Jim Wallace, Scott City; B. F. "Hot" Rogers, Carthageville; David Rolwing, Charleston; and Thad Bullock, Bill D. Burlison and Bob Robison, all of Cape Girardeau, and one Republican, Vernon H. Landgraf, Cape Girardeau.

The meeting was one is a series throughout the 10th district sponsored by the Missouri Farm Bureau Federation to give candidates a chance to express their views.

About 60 attended the session at the junior high school.

Candidates not at the meeting were Democrats Winston V. Buford, Eminence; Jay Mounify, Fisk; Harry L. Peterson, Flat River; John Havis, Sikeston; and Edward Robb, Perryville, and Republicans William Carhart, Alton, and Thomas J. Cox, Poplar Bluff.

Each candidate was given five minutes to tell his background and qualifications for office and to make a brief statement of his policies.

Then each candidate was asked three questions which had been selected before the meeting. Each candidate responded to the same question before the next was asked.

The questions and candidates' responses:

1. Will an increase in federal income tax halt the present inflationary trend of the economy?

Landgraf: Yes, he favors a temporary tax increase "provided by the fat and butter are taken out of the federal budget." He said an $8 billion to $11 billion cut in the federal budget would be more realistic than the $6 billion cut requested by Congress. He said the tax hike would only be a stopgap approach and that the problem lays in too much federal spending for nonessential programs.

Wallace: Yes, "but only temporarily." He said he favored the tax increase "only because we are in trouble." He advocates a cut in federal spending.

Burlison: Yes, increasing taxes will put a brake on inflation, but government spending must also be cut. He said that the biggest problem is the cost of the Vietnam War and that the U.S. must find an honorable way out of the war.

Rogers: Yes, "but will the advantages outweigh the disadvantages." He said raising taxes would hurt the working people and curtail economic growth. "Some of the government programs are worthless." He wants workable federal programs that will last and wants something for the money he would vote for.

Bullock: No, "it would curb inflation only temporarily." He said the tax increase would hurt the poor people. "Tax the corporations that have the money to spend. Don't tax the little man."

Rolwing: No, prices are rising about four per cent a year, which means federal spending would have to be cut by $20 billion a year to be effective. The proposed 10 per cent surtax in an $800 billion a year economy would raise only $10 billion, of which $3 billion would be paid by corporations and $7 billion by citizens. Interest rates will go down and investments will increase, causing more inflation.

Robison: No, because tax increases haven't curbed inflation in the past. The U. S. has $21 billion in uncollected debts from allies in World War II. "We should stop loaning and start borrowing from these countries instead of from American citizens. We must cut some of the fat and tighten belts."

2. Do you favor the present program?

Burlison: Yes, it should be continued with modifications. The farmer's income is still declining. The present program is a good starting point, but he favors an increase in supports and payments under the present farm program, expanding it as it relates to international.

Rogers: Yes, he is for the parity concept until something is proven sufficient to take its place. "The farmer has to be insured of something for his investment." With two crop failures in the past two years the cotton farmer would have been ruined without the program. He favors promotion of new uses for cotton so it can remain competitive with fibers.

Bullock: Yes, keep it as it is or "we will lose the farmer." He advocates selling surplus farm goods abroad rather than giving them away through foreign aid. He said if the farmer can grow more bushels of corn and wheat per acre and if he can market the products, the prices should go up.

Landgraf: The current program needs improvement, farmers are not making an adequate return on their investments. The average farm income was off $600 last year but the farmer borrowed an average of $1,300. He favors setting up an advisory committee of farmers and would like the government to "get out of the farm business gradually" and let farmers run their own business.

Robison: No, he does not favor the present program. "It's a loser, it's wrong." He pointed out that grain prices dropped from 1951 to 1967. "Something has to be done with the program."

Rolwing: Yes, the objective of the program is to help farmers work together and prevent overproduction. The program "helps to tailor production to the market." A University of Iowa study shows that prices would drop and stay down if the program were dropped. "I'm willing to consider alternatives, but until they are presented let's continue what we have."

3. Do you favor federal aid to education?

Burlison: Yes. "We have just about reached the saturation point on the local level to raise money for education... The state foundation program has tripled in the past three years but it is still not enough if we are to have quality education in the future. We need another source of funds." The federal government has provided funds on a piecemeal basis. "We will have to go to more federal aid disbursed by the states."

Rogers: Yes. "Schools have reached the saturation point on local taxing... Part of the tax dollar going to Washington should be returned to the local communities." He favors the federal government returning to states part of the tax dollar to be administered by state and local governments.

Bullock: Yes, the federal government should help fund education it should not set up offices to administer the funds. "The federal government should send money to Jefferson City to be disbursed by the state."

Landgraf: Yes, he favors funding federal money to the state rather than to local school boards became the state could "fight the red tape" of federal programs. He said some federal education programs, such as Sikes.

vocational education, have been helpful but that he is not in favor of receiving more federal aid than is now being received because it would mean more federal control of education.

Rolwing: Yes. Because of increased mobility in the U. S., education is no longer a local problem but a national one. Local property taxes have been pushed to the limit, but there is still a problem of attracting and keeping good teachers because of low salaries, especially for those teachers with several years experience. He favors the federal government funding tax money back to the state with only two strings attached—the money must be used only for schools and the state must continue to make the same financial contribution it now makes.

Winds Raze Large Barn

BLODGETT - Heavy winds Saturday afternoon destroyed a large barn on the farm of W. A. Beggs, west of here on route H.

Tree damage was reported along route H, between Miner and Blodgett.

The winds damaged a large number of trees in Sikeston. One was broken at its roots at the home of Mrs. Fred Geske, 809

Beefed-up Viet Red Air Defenses Introduce Soviet Long-Range Guns

SAIGON (AP) - The enemy command stepped up the pace of battle over the weekend and for the first time introduced Soviet long-range anti-aircraft guns to its beefed up air defenses just north of the demilitarized zone. A U. S. spokesman said 16 of the guns were spotted and air strikes destroyed or damaged them all.

Allied forces reported killing more than 1,000 enemy troops in a weekend of savage fighting from the outskirts of Saigon to the demilitarized zone.

In keeping with Hanoi's proclaimed "fight and talk" policy, the Communist command's push came as North Vietnamese and American negotiators prepared for their fifth meeting today in the Paris cease-fire talks. American casualties were reported as 54 killed and 192 wounded in the series of battles. South Vietnamese losses were termed light.

Sharp fighting continued on three sides of Saigon today. The Viet Cong was believed moving 500 to 1,000 troops toward the capital.

The heaviest fighting over the weekend came in the northern sector, where North Vietnamese troops renewed their pressure on the U.S. Marine headquarters at Dong Ha, and in the central highlands, where a massive campaign may be shaping up.

U.S. spokesmen said superior allied firepower led to enemy defeats in most of the clashes, but American troops appeared to have been set back in at least two places.

About 800 North Vietnamese overran a section of the perimeter and four bunkers at a U.S. 4th Infantry Division patrol and artillery base 11 miles west of Dak To in the central highlands. In more than seven hours of fighting, 14 U.S. infantrymen were killed and 56 wounded. U.S. fighter-bombers joined the battle and the enemy retreated in thick fog.

About 400 Viet Cong troops attacking with grenades, mortars and small arms killed five infantrymen of a U.S. 25th Division unit in night defensive positions on the northwestern outskirts of Saigon, six miles from the center of the city. The enemy withdrew early today.

As in the first two weeks of May, heavy fighting raged again around Dong Ha, headquarters of the U.S. 3rd Marine Division, 11 miles below the demilitarized zone.

South Vietnamese infantrymen reported killing 99 enemy soldiers Sunday on the same battleground where government troops claimed 152 killed the previous day. Government losses in Sunday's battle were reported as one killed and one wounded, and casualties Saturday also were reported light.

U.S. Marines of the 4th Regiment ran into North Vietnamese troops in bunkers seven miles northeast of Dong Ha Saturday and reported killing 103 of them in a 14-hour fight.

Thuy, Harriman Swap New Blasts

PARIS (AP) - North Vietnam charged today that the Paris peace talks had so far failed to achieve any results because the United States has refused to take up "the main aim of these conversations," the end of the bombing of North Vietnam.

The United States accused North Vietnam of giving out distorted figures on American and allied losses in the war.

"We hope that you are not deceiving yourselves," U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman told Ambassador Xuan Thuy.

Today's session, the fifth in two weeks of meetings, lasted for four hours and 10 minutes. The next meeting was set for Friday.

U.S. deputy chief negotiator Cyrus R. Vance arranged to leave for Washington to report to President Johnson.

Thuy made a 5400-word statement and concluded with this question: "When does the United States cease unconditionally their bombardments and all other acts of war on the entire territory on the Democratic Republic of Vietnam in order to permit discussions to go on to other problems of interest to the two sides?"

Kennedy Shows Concern For Oregon's Undecided

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - Sen. Robert F. Kennedy courted the undecided voter in Oregon today while Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy claimed "every sign" now points to a hefty vote in his column in Tuesday's Democratic presidential primary.

Nixon said supporters of two absent GOP rivals, Govs. Ronald Reagan of California and Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, are working in tandem in an effort to stop his drive for the White House nomination.

The former vice president said he does not think that effort will succeed, and forecast he will get 55 per cent of the GOP vote Tuesday.

Kennedy and his top lieutenants believe a substantial bloc of Oregon Democrats are still undecided in the final hours of a hectic campaign, and they are concerned because in past elections, McCarthy appeared to have scored well with late-deciding voters.

Fire destroyed a one room frame house at 210 Young St. at 6:10 p.m. Sunday. The building was unoccupied. Cause of the fire was undetermined.

Dexter Woman Dies After Auto Overturns

A Dexter woman died enroute to Doctors hospital in Poplar Bluff, following a one-car accident, Sunday at 10:45 p.m. Sunday, on highway 25, two miles south of Bloomfield.

She was Frankolene Mae Sides, 26, 310 East Vine Street, Dexter, a passenger in a 1965 Volkswagen, driven by Ralph Walters Jr., 38, route one, Dexter. The vehicle ran off the road into a ditch and overturned, the state patrol reported.

Her one-year old son, Tony, received a skull fracture. The driver received a concussion and bruises.

The body was taken to the Rainey Funeral Home in Dexter.

Four Chaffee residents were injured in a two-car collision Sunday at 11:40 a.m., on highway 51 at McBride, in Perry County. A 1964 Ford, driven by Jerry Gentry, 26, Rockford, Ill., attempted to pass a 1968 Ford pickup truck, driven by Paul Montgomery, 27, Chaffee. The truck was making a left turn, when the two vehicles collided.

Two of the injured in the Gentry car were from Chaffee. The driver, possible internal injuries.

The injured passengers were Charles Gentry, 57, sustained cuts on his head; and Willa Gentry, 51, a hip injury and cuts on her head.

In the truck the injured were Montgomery, numerous cuts, and a passenger, Don Eastwood, 40, minor injuries, both of Chaffee.

The six injured were taken to Perry County Memorial Hospital in Perryville.

Gentry was given a summons for careless and imprudent driving. Jerry Marler, 23, Poplar

Bluff, lost control of his 1967 Honda motorcycle in loose gravel, Sunday at 2 p.m., on route W, one and one-half miles north of Poplar Bluff, and was thrown from his vehicle.

He received cuts and bruises and was treated at Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Three were injured Saturday at 6 p.m. on highway 153 near Risco in New Madrid county, in a one-car accident.

Ambers Everett, 33, Malden, lost control of his 1953 Chevrolet pickup truck, ran off the road and overturned.

Everett received cuts, and two passengers, Phyllis Moore, 10, and Ethel Everett, 33, both of Parma, were hurt. The child received internal injuries, and the woman a possible broken pelvis and possible skull fracture.

The injured were brought to the Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston.

Police Report Six Arrests, One Breakin

About $15 in change was reported taken from Carroll's Florist, 108 Sikes, Friday night or early Saturday. Saturday night or early Sunday 13 cents was taken from the cash register, Sikeston police reported.

The burglar apparently entered through a window on the east side of the greenhouse and left through the front door, police reported.

In other activity, Carl Bradshaw, 228 rear Moore St., reported to police that a battery valued at $60 was taken from his automobile between 11 p.m. Saturday and 7 a.m. Sunday while it was parked at the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Mrs. Herman Ray, 436 Coleman, reported to police at 8:23 a.m. Sunday that her daughter's white purse with a shoulder strap was taken Saturday night from the Batman A-Go-Go. The purse contained a payroll check from the Sikeston IGA Foodliner to Teresa Ray for $86.40. It also contained her driver's license and social security card.

Otis Lee Morris, 59, 318 Ruth St., was arrested at 7:50 p.m. Saturday on Tanner St. and charged with displaying a dangerous weapon.

Ernest R. Smith, 63, Ruleville, Miss., was charged at 6:45 p.m. Sunday with failure to yield the right of way. The vehicle he was driving collided with an automobile driven by Thomas J. Story, Sikeston, in the 1600 block of East Malone. Smith pulled from the Imperial bowling lanes lot on to Malone and struck the Story vehicle, police reported.

William E. Starr, 57, Dexter, was charged at 6:45 p.m. Saturday with careless and imprudent driving. He drove in front of a car driven by William E. Arthur, 130 Third St. at Main and Malone, police reported.

James L. Crawford, 36, 30 Benton St., was charged at 8 a.m. Sunday with assault and affray. He was arrested at his residence.

Martha Harper, 24, 605 Vernon St., was charged at 7:45 a.m. Saturday with operating a motor vehicle with no city auto license. She was stopped on North St.

Thomas H. Richey, 20, 1036 North Kingshighway, was charged at 11:30 p.m. Saturday with running a stop sign on West Malone.

Police received a report at 4:25 p.m. Sunday that boys were swimming in basements filled with water in partially completed houses under construction in Collins North Acres. The caller was concerned with the safety of the boys. The youths ran when police arrived.

Tom Vansant, 310 Pam, reported to police at 1:37 p.m. Saturday that someone entered his yard Friday night and mowed shrubbery causing considerable damage.

Man Charged in Shooting Death

KENNETT (AP) - John Usery, 48, of Caruth, Mo., was charged today with first-degree murder in the fatal weekend shooting of David Mitchell, 18, of Kennett.

Dunklin County Sheriff Raymond Scott said the youth was shot to death in a parking lot near his home.

Scott said the two scuffled as a result of a renewal of an argument that started Friday. Mitchell was shot in the back of the head with a .32 caliber revolver.

Usery was ordered held without bond.

Tickets Will Be Given for Bike Safety

Three free tickets to the Jaycee swimming pool or the Malone Theatre will be awarded daily throughout the summer to bicyclists who practice safety.

The bike safety program will be sponsored by the auxiliary police with the cooperation of the swimming pool and the theater. It will begin June 1, and continue through Aug. 31. A total of 270 tickets will be given away.

To be eligible cyclists must keep their vehicles in good condition. Items to be checked by the cyclist include brakes, headlights, horn, rear lights, or reflectors, and fenders on bikes. The operators of bicycles must know hand signals, street signs and marked intersections. Bicyclists will be judged by auxiliary police and the police department.

Sgt. Leonard Campbell will present tickets to three winners each day.

Handicapped Boy Wins Battle for Diploma

By Warren Sokolis
NEW MADRID - When Danny Joe Taylor received his high school diploma at New Madrid high school commencement exercises, he was given a five-minute ovation by the audience.

It was an unusual response for a high school commencement audience, but young Taylor's high school education did not come as easily as it does to most graduating seniors.

For the past six years he has been paralyzed from his shoulders to his feet.

Taylor, 21, was injured in a swimming accident near Sikeston July 8, 1962. He was diving from a bridge and hit the bottom of a swimming hole sustaining a broken neck and spinal injury.

Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin D. Taylor, had completed his freshman year at New Madrid high school when he was injured.

He was in Barnes Hospital at St. Louis 11 months following the accident. The first nine months he could not sit up.

It was during his confinement at Barnes that Taylor revealed the determination and courage, which carried him through to his goal of completing his high school education.

Doctors at Barnes were surprised that Taylor was able to sit up in his bed after nine months, believing that he probably would be confined to a bed for the rest of his life.

The youth's formal education was resumed after his dismissal from Barnes. He was still confined to a bed, so his schooling had to be conducted in his home by tutors.

His first tutor was Sam Bodine, who at the time was superintendent of county schools. Bodine is now superintendent of New Madrid schools.

Bodine tutored young Taylor for two years of home study. The youth had to lie in bed and could sit up for only one hour a day.

Taylor credits Bodine with giving him the early encouragement he needed to complete his high school education.

His next tutor was Mrs. Louise Avery, followed by Mrs. Glenn Dyke. Both are teachers at the high school.

Attaining his high school education was an uphill struggle. In the past six years Taylor has been hospitalized about two years. He has had five major operations and several minor operations.

"I kept going," he explained. "I knew I couldn't do anything but sit around."

The doctors at Barnes encouraged him to complete his high school education so he could go to college.

It has been only the past three years that he has been able to sit up for any length of time, and only the past two years that he has been able to sit up all day.

Taylor's high school education became a community concern when it was decided that he could finally return to exercises with the rest of the regular classroom study during class.

the second semester of his junior year.

When citizens learned that Taylor would need a wheelchair to use at school, they began a fund raising campaign. Residents had already donated $2,027 to help the family pay for hospital bills when he was first injured.

The campaign to provide him with an electric wheelchair began on a Tuesday. By the following Sunday $900 has been collected. Students sold soft drinks at school and conducted a house-to-house collection.

When Taylor returned to classroom study, he encountered another problem. Because he has no feeling or muscular control of his hands, he is unable to write.

In his home study this handicap was no problem since all classwork was done orally. However, his fellow students pitched in to help him in the classroom. Taylor dictated his classwork to students who volunteered to do his writing.

His classroom education was going smoothly, Taylor explained, until last February when he had to go back to Barnes for another operation.

"I was out of school for seven weeks and didn't know if I could catch up in my school work in time to graduate with the class," he said. "Toward the end of the term I had to do a lot of all-night studying."

But through his efforts and with the help of his family, classmates and teachers, Taylor was able to complete his high school requirements on time and to participate in commencement exercises with the rest of the regular classroom study during class.

Looking back on the past six years, Taylor recalls that there were times when he didn't think he would finish high school. "I couldn't have made it without the help of my family and friends," he remarked.

"I was really discouraged at first when I saw everybody doing things I liked to do," he recalls. He had played a lot of baseball before his accident and liked to swim and fish.

But he was able to develop other interests to occupy his spare time.

One of his hobbies is tape recording. He corresponds with other handicapped persons throughout the country by tape recording as one would do by letter. He also collects tropical fish and still enjoys going fishing and reading adventure stories.

He would like to become a ham radio operator. Some of the local residents have been discussing the possibility of providing him with the necessary equipment so he can do this.

Taylor is now considering enrolling at the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana. The university has classroom and dormitory facilities for the handicapped.

He likes sociology and psychology and is considering a career in teaching, social work or counseling.

If his past performance is any indication, Taylor will attain his next goal of a college education. As one of his teachers, Mrs. Dyke, explained:

"He was always so cheerful and wouldn't let anything get him down. I think it's wonderful to see anyone with that much determination wanting to accomplish the job as much as Taylor has two sisters, Sylvia, 19, and Joyce, 17, and one brother, Denison, 10. His father is employed at Ralph Anderson Lumber Company.

And, she noted, Taylor had an honor roll average his last three years of school.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS:

A PRICE AND A DEBT

The obligation is staggering.
May 30 is Memorial Day. We set this day aside to remember our war dead and to reverse them for the price they paid.

More than 600,000 American servicemen have died for their country. Since the Revolutionary War, more than 2,300,000 Americans have been killed or wounded in the service of their country.

Many gave up their lives so that we, the living, might know Freedom. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty: It is also a debt we owe our war dead.

When you ask a favor you borrow, and some day you will be asked to return what was loaned you.

If a man is poor in his old age, his children abuse him because they have to do so much for him, and if he is rich they abuse him because he does not do more for them.

A WAY TO IMPROVE
ELECTORAL COLLEGE

Nearly everyone who has written on the subject for the last 180 years or so has called for doing away with or drastically altering the Electoral College method of choosing the nation's president.

The criticism has been especially vigorous this year because of the possibility that the third-party candidacy of former Alabama Gov. George Wallace could throw the election into the House of Representatives. The wheeling and dealing that might accompany that eventually gives some people nightmares.

There are 538 electoral votes, which is the total of the representatives and senators of the 50 states, plus three for the District of Columbia. When John Q. Public votes in November, he votes not for the presidential and vice presidential candidates of the party of his choice but for a slate of electors. The elected electors in turn meet in their respective state capitals in December and are morally - but not legally - bound to vote for the candidates they represented on the ballot.

The Constitution provides that when no candidate receives a majority (270) of the electoral votes, the House of Representatives must choose the president from the top three candidates, with each state's delegation casting one vote. (Senators vote as individuals for one of the top two vice presidential candidates.)

There are two main proposals for reform. One is to abolish the Electoral College outright and elect the president and vice president by direct vote, like every other elective federal official. The other proposal is to retain the college, but make its votes proportional to the popular vote in each state.

The Electoral College is not lacking for defenders, however, who argue that is not the unmitigated evil its opponents say it is.

For one thing, it has spared the United States from the divisive and paralyzing bane of splinter parties. The electoral system gives the candidate with the most popular votes ALL of a state's electoral votes, even if his popular majority was one. (It also gives the more populous states a deservedly greater weight in the election than the less populous.)

This winner-take-all system, because it maximizes the victory of the winner in a close election, has undoubtedly served to reconcile the voters whose candidate lost.

In 1960, John F. Kennedy had a popular majority of a mere 118,000 out of 68 million popular votes, but in electoral votes he defeated Richard Nixon by 303 to 219. There have been 14 other presidents, including Abraham Lincoln, who did not receive a majority of the popular vote, yet who won decisively in the Electoral College.

Even if the president were elected by direct popular vote, there would still be the possibility, whenever there were more than two candidates, of no one receiving a majority.

The Electoral College is not ideal by any means. Yet, except for two or three elections, it has served the nation well.

If there must be a constitutional amendment, one legally binding electors to vote as the people instruct them and stating simply that the candidate receiving the most, not the majority, of the votes in the Electoral College be declared president would correct the most serious deficiencies of the system while preserving its desirable features.

Lots of men are guilty of this meanest of all tricks: borrowing money and failing to pay it back. A man who is perfectly honest with other men, because he knows he has to be, is often dishonest with his mother or sister.

Don Agnew defines a beatnik as one who has flaked out on the job, but kept the coffee break.

At a church banquet every speaker except the preacher thinks it is essential to start his remarks with a joke on the preacher.

Americans who have not flown their flags since last Labor Day, or even before that, have an excellent opportunity to give Old Glory a needed springtime dusting and airing in advance of Memorial Day.

Americans who seldom or never have flown the flag have an excellent opportunity to get into the habit.

The occasion is the opening of peace negotiations, between this country and North Vietnam in Paris. It has been suggested that every American who can do so display the flag each day for at least a week when the discussions get under way as an appropriate means of indicating the solidarity of the American people behind their leaders and diplomatic representatives.

To some, the idea may sound corny. To others, it may perhaps smack of chauvinism. To still others, in view of the deep dissension, disaffection or disillusionment the war has aroused in many people, the idea may at best seem unrealistic.

But if the men in Hanoi watch the American home front closely - and they do - and if what they have seen in the past has suggested to them that they may gain at the bargaining table that which the sacrifices of American soldiers have denied to them in battle, the greatest service we could all make to the cause of peace just possibly might be such a dramatic demonstration of patriotism and unity as the mass, week-long, public and private display of the national emblem.

It would give Hanoi, and the rest of the world, unmistakable proof that we are in no sense striking the colors in the Vietnam struggle. Far from it. We are - to paraphrase General Grant - prepared to fight it out on the Paris line or any other line, all summer, and all next winter and all the summer after that, if need be, until there is achieved a just, meaningful and workable peace for all concerned. Nothing more and nothing less.

The most unrealistic thing Americans could do now that negotiations are actually to begin, negotiations that all have prayed for these many long months, would be to continue sniping at and finding fault with the administration and to fail to support it at a time when that support is most essential for an honorable termination of the military conflict.

Americans have usually been quick to fly the flag whenever their country has embarked on the arduous and costly prosecution of a war. Never before have they been asked to fly the flag as their country undertook the exceedingly difficult and laborious business of prosecuting a peace.

Americans who have a flag should get it out and fly it.

Americans who don't have a flag should go out and get one and then fly it.

Some people are always seeing things that should be done. "Somebody ought to attend to this," they say. True, but who?

Clever replies are those you think of the morning after the argument.

FBI CHIEF FRACTURES BRUTALITY

Law enforcement today is being degraded, purposely in many instances, by the widespread and indiscriminate use of the term "police brutality."

This practice is called a guilt-by-language process by some individuals. They may be right. For example, the word "juvenile" has been associated with "delinquency" so often and so long that now, when used alone, it has a disagreeable connotation to much of the public.

"Police brutality" conjures up visions of hulking men in uniform clubbing and beating innocent people. Rarely, however, does the term fit the circumstances to which it is applied. It is used in wild accounts of enforcement officers' lifting limp demonstrators who block busy thoroughfares, in references to oral commands by policemen who disperse potential troublemakers, in depicting efforts by officers to halt violations of the law, and in describing any number of other sworn duties performed by policemen.

We know there is a calculated and deliberate attempt by some groups to inflame hostility against law enforcement by charging "police brutality" without cause. To a large degree they have succeeded. The term is bandied about in all media of communication without serious consideration as to its true meaning or its harmful effect on a profession which is charged with enforcing the basic rules of civilized living.

I agree with a growing number of responsible news editors, public officials, and law-abiding citizens that it is high time to get this "pet slogan" into a better perspective. We do not deny there have been instances of misuse of force by enforcement officers, but such incidents are not as prevalent as the public has been led to believe. A general and accepted principle of the law has been that an officer may use such force as is necessary to make lawful arrests, protect his life, and perform other specific duties. Frequently, however, the choice is not his to make; he has to use force or be maimed or killed and have the rights of all the people trampled by those who have no respect for law or due process. Even then, his best efforts often are not enough, as evidenced by the appalling number of officers assaulted and killed each year.

Policemen have the same basic rights as others. There is no reason why they should be singled out for ridicule by invalid blanket accusations. The public, the press, and law enforcement itself should launch a concerted drive to stop the semantic indictment of police. Allegations and incidents should be reported and described in realistic, impartial, and truthful terms. If an officer is assaulted while making an arrest and uses undue force to subdue the person, then call it "undue force." If an officer uses profane language to a citizen, then describe it as profane language. If an officer is thought to be biased or prejudiced in his treatment of groups or individuals, then the complaint should so state. But the constant cry of "police brutality" as a catch phrase, exploited and used as camouflage for illegal conduct, is dead wrong. It is a stigmatization of police by rote.

NEW YORK (AP) - Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Obesity, once a prestige symbol, has become so hateful to Americans that nearly seven million a year now seek medical help in losing weight. One out of every four persons has a girth control problem.

Do you feel some days that you're bearing the weight of the world on your shoulders? It might help to put your worries in perspective to recall that you are only one of three billion or so people on an obscure planet circling a sun which is only one of 200 billion stars in a single galaxy - and the universe holds millions upon millions of galaxies. You and all your problems are far less noticeable in that universe than one microbe is in a whale.

Tip to forgetful drivers: Have you taken off your snow tires yet? If left on a car during summer months, the heat built up in them by high-speed driving can result in disastrous blowouts.

time away from the throne in biological studies. He has written nine books. The latest is a study of coral life in his islands.

Violence long ago: Police reports still commonly designate an unknown weapon used to commit a crime as "a blunt instrument." But man didn't invent murderous blunt instruments. Recent excavations in Africa have unearthed crude stone hammers made 12 million years ago by a prehuman ancestor of man - scientists call him Kenyapithecus Wickeri. Mr. Wickeri used his hammer to bash in the skulls of antelopes - and perhaps those of his neighbors.

One year later, on May 21, 1968, Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Paraguay and Uruguay concluded such an agreement.

WASHINGTON - Sen. Robert F. Kennedy has denied that when attorney general he authorized the wiretapping or bugging of Dr. Martin Luther King, or on any other of the FBI's eavesdropping activity.

In a conversation with the authors of this column last January, he denied that he knew anything about the FBI's eavesdropping. In referring to the bugging of lobbyist Fred Black's room in the Sheraton-Carlton Hotel he said he had not known about it until he read it in the newspapers.

Kennedy also denied having anything to do with the investigation of Bob Baker, the ex-senate secretary who may have been investigated for the purpose of linking him with the then vice president, Lyndon Johnson. Baker and Fred Black were intimate friends, and President Johnson has been convinced that Kennedy launched the black probe as a means of knocking LBJ off his brother's 1964 ticket. Kennedy, however, denied this.

"If I had ordered an investigation of Bobby Baker," he told us, "someone would have written a memorandum to that effect; and there is no such memo."

It is not pleasant to be in the position of challenging the word of a member of the Kennedy family. In all deference to the former attorney general, however, there exist some important memos in the justice department which show conclusively that he did have knowledge of eavesdropping and that he authorized part of it.

One memo was written on July 16, 1963, after Kennedy had requested a wiretap be placed on the phone of Dr. Martin Luther King. The memo Kennedy authorized explained how the FBI had eavesdropped; he showed great interest in Fred Black hotel room bugging; he took initiative in tapping Dr. Martin Luther King's phone.

security conditions which only the FBI had."

SIGNIFICANT MEMO
The memo is signed by FBI liaison man Courtney Evans who became Bobby's close friend and was entertained socially in the Kennedy home. Addressed to Alan H. Belmont, assistant director of the FBI, the memo reads:

"In line with the director's approval, the Attorney General was contacted this morning, July 7, 1961, relative to his observation as to the possibility of utilizing 'electronic devices' in organized crime investigations. "It was pointed out to the Attorney General that we had taken action with regard to the use of microphone surveillances in these cases and, while they represented an expensive investigative step, we were nevertheless utilizing them in all instances where this was technically feasible and where valuable information might be expected. The strong objections to the utilization of telephone taps as contrasted to microphone surveillances was stressed. The Attorney General stated he recognized the reasons why telephone taps should be restricted to National-Defense-type cases and he was pleased we had been using microphone surveillances where these objections do not apply wherever possible in organized crime matters."

"The Attorney General noted that he had approved several technical surveillances in connection with security-type investigations since he took office, but that he had not kept any record and didn't really know what he had approved and what he hadn't. He said that for his own information he would like to see a list of the technical surveillances now in operation. He added that Kennedy was represented as personally and that he would look it over and immediately return it because he realized the importance of having these records maintained under the special security conditions which only the FBI had."

consumers. Food distributors have been holding meetings with consumers all over the country during recent months at which retail operations have been explained in detail including the fact that profit margins per dollar of sales have dropped almost to the vanishing point. These "Consumer Dialogues" between housewives and retailers have helped to build a better understanding of the distribution system.

Retailers in all lines, both chain and independent, have endeavored as never before to cut costs and shave prices to help offset the ravages of inflation. But, it is manifestly impossible for any industry, retailers included, to absorb rising costs that are the direct result of inflationary spending and fiscal policies of government - to say nothing of consumer demand for costly services involving everything from parking lots and piped music to prepared food.

The competitive free market provides amenities and conveniences that would not otherwise be available. It also provides the fairest possible process through the competitive process for both the necessities and luxuries of life. These are facts that it is important for consumers to understand.

This spring, some over-enthusiastic UCLA freshmen were apprehended for hella-raising in Palm Springs. When the sergeant took them in, one of the lads (a pre-legal student), stood on his rights to make at least one telephone call, after which he was led back to his cell. Shortly afterwards, a delivery boy arrived. He asked the desk sergeant, "Who ordered the pizza?"

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

PINS AND NEEDLES:
Labor's Image Makers Find Straight and Warped Unionism. Atlantic City, N.J. - I'm always proud to be among my elders and become one of their peers - especially when I amble along a historic boardwalk with men and women who wove the soul of decency into the fabric of American trade unionism.

Here I am among the gentle people of the Ladies Garment Workers Union now gathered for their 33rd convention - and some of them can remember the early days of hunger, consumption, dawn-to-dusk working days, days so long they saw their little children only when the youngsters were asleep.

And there are now many young people, too, of all races and creeds, graduates of the union's officer training schools, and of the evening educational classes which were started before George M. Cohan wrote "Over There."

Here, then, is a union of some 450,000 led by ex-shortstop Louis Stulberg, never making a fetish of honesty because honesty comes naturally to these pins and needles people. They starve to longer. Only on Broadway and in the movies is the "rag business" filled with joke-telling salesmen, front men and fifth seasons.

Increasingly, the dress industry now is made up of giant firms which have gone public. Railroad and tobacco companies, seeking to diversify, are negotiating for the purchase of these "shops."

And along with the industry - which this union literally saved with its industrial sciences, time and motion studies, and money loans - the International Ladies Garment Workers has grown into a modern behemoth.

Its social welfare funds now total $525.5 million. These monies are managed by the Chase Manhattan Bank. No one makes a "skim" from their investment - except the rank and file.

The ILGWU has 53 accountants in its auditing dept. which was set up 33 years ago, long before it was the practice to report union finances to the membership.

How simple it would be if this was the image of all labor. How easy would be the task of the AFL-CIO's inner-sanctum public relations review committee, headed by the Musicians union president, Herman Kenin. Soon, when George Meany returns from London, Mr. Kenin and his committee colleagues will have to report on updating the labor movement's image.

But it is not only Mr. Stulberg's pins and needles people with whom the Musicians union leader must "Madison Ave." the giant labor federation. The AFL-CIO is of many kinds. There are hundreds of men

H.L. Hunt Says

AN IMPORTANT ISSUE

U.S. policy toward Fidel Castro's Cuba may become a much-discussed issue in this year's presidential campaign. The fact cannot be escaped that Cuba has become a base not only for Latin American subversion as well, Havana is the site of headquarters for the Tricontinental Organization (Asia, Africa and Latin America) which promotes in every way possible the solidarity of so-called "anti-imperialist" movements of the three continents.

The Tricontinental Organization runs 43 guerrilla training camps with the stated purpose of training fighters for "more Vietnams." It has a subsidiary called the Latin-American Solidarity Organization, which maintains a Tricontinental Information Center in New York City.

The Soviet Union, of which Cuba is a client state, is carrying on a twofold offensive against Latin America. On the one hand, Russia gives support to Castro's policy of fostering violent revolution in several countries. On the other hand, the Soviets open diplomatic relations and conclude trade agreements with the very governments their agents are working to destroy.

At the same time, Russia has reduced U. S. strategic superiority in the Caribbean area. According to the highly knowledgeable Citizens Committee for a Free Cuba, the Soviet Union maintains in Cuba 23 operational sites for small missiles and six sites for winged missiles and has perhaps as many as 30,000 members of its own armed forces on the island. These are matters that seriously threaten the internal security of the United States. As such, they should be candidly discussed during this presidential election year. HLH.

Some of them, local leaders at that, earn almost as much as the President of the U.S. In modern unionism there is some reason for national chiefs being paid in high five-figure salaries.

But the local crowd - what of them? They don't run a complex international union, administering billions of dollars in pension funds and real estate. Nor do they deal with multibillion dollar industries.

There is, for example, in Newark, further north in this state, the typical business unionist. His name is Peter Weber, leader of a 80,000 member manpower-controlling local, 825, of the Operating Engineers. He draws a total annual salary of $84,480 as local president and business manager and as national vice president of the Operating Engineers.

In addition, last year he drew $16,700 from his local in expenses.

For the moment let's skip the fact that last August he was indicted on charges of extortion and conspiracy to extort about one million dollars worth of pipeline construction contracts, according to the government.

Mr. Weber, whose hobby is yachting and collecting Congressional friends, was sponsored by his patron, Joey Fay, a convicted extortionist, who now draws an annual pension of $13,107 from Weber's local. Court records show that years ago Fay records his union power to extort hundreds of thousands of dollars from Eastern contractors. For this he served considerable prison time after Tom Dewey finished with him.

At the recent national Operating Engineers convention, Fay, a delegate who got a standing ovation, nominated Weber for a vice presidency.

The union records show that in the last year Weber's local 825 gave Fay a $5,692 car. For a leader of the proletariat, that's a rather well-priced wagon.

How many poor families in Newark could this $5,000 have helped buy a pair of shoes, for a school youngster, or a suit of clothes for the threadbare breadwinner or a dress for the housewife who hasn't had one for years?

And so, here by the sea, it's refreshing to walk with the rank and file of the Ladies Garment Workers, whose president gets no car from his union, who by choice is one of the lowest salaried national labor leaders in the land, and whose union now disburses over $108 million in social services and payments and thus takes a heavy load off the tax burdened public.

Apparently there are a lot of people, still, who believe that virtue is its own reward. And then, there are a lot who don't. And they give away or ride in $5,000 cars paid for by the people.

Highlights and Sidelights from Our State Capitol

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. — An agreement between the Missouri Department of Agriculture and the U. S. Department of Agriculture has given a shot in the arm to the state's meat inspection program.

The federal government will pay up to half the cost of inspection in nearly 600 meat and poultry slaughtering and processing plants that do business entirely within Missouri.

Under the terms of the federal Wholesome Meat Act of 1967, states were given two years to set up their own inspection programs to meet federal standards. The Missouri program, started the first of this year, had been in doubt after the Legislature slashed its appropriation during the recent special session.

Dr. George C. Stiles, state veterinarian, said the department will continue to hire and train eight inspectors each month. He said federal participation will allow the state to employ more than 25 inspectors authorized by the Legislature in March.

Stiles said the inspection program will be expanded in steps. The first objective will be to require overall sanitation in the slaughtering and processing plants. Then state inspectors will begin inspection of each animal both before and after it is slaughtered. The final step will be inspection of processing procedures.

Plants engaged only in custom slaughtering of animals for consumption by the owner will be exempt from the before-and-after-death inspection, Stiles added.

During discussions between federal and state officials, teams of inspectors from the USDA and the state department inspected 30 plants within the state. The major criticism indicated in their reports was the lack of sanitation.

Dr. Stiles said the unsanitary conditions revealed by the reports are not a major health threat but must be corrected to meet federal standards. Dr. H. E. McCutchan, assistant state veterinarian, emphasized that conditions are "quite acceptable for never having been under strict supervision."

"These plants have had no inspection before this," he said. "There was no one to go in and point out these problems to them."

"The meat industry in Missouri is in good shape," Dr. Stiles said. "Sure, some plants will have to spend some money to meet federal standards. But the industry has cooperated with us. The welcome inspection because it adds prestige to their product."

Although federal standards will be used, the state will administer the inspection, Dr. Stiles said. "A few things in the federal standards aren't really workable," he said, "and the federal government realizes this. The state can actually lead in the state-federal program by developing a practical, flexible program."

"I think this is a good point to start," Dr. Stiles continued. "From now on the responsibility is ours. A year from now the conditions in the meat industry will have to be better. The reports show that inspection is needed."

Ozark Regional Commission Grants Funds To Missouri

The Ozark Regional Commission gathered in Jefferson City early this month for their regular meeting to discuss administration problems and allocation of federal grants.

The Commission, composed of representatives from the four-state Ozark area, declared two grants for the state of Missouri, both going to construct improvements in the Poplar Bluff area. A new civic center and a vocational training center will be built there.

The Ozark Regional Commission is officially composed of the governors of the four Ozark area states — Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Kansas. However, administrative officials appointed by the governors do the work of the commission.

Originated in President Johnson's War on Poverty program, the commission is following an aid program similar to the one used in Appalachia as part of the President's plan for federal economic assistance to regional underdeveloped areas.

Medals in Honor of Disney Authorized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Medals honoring the late Walt Disney, the entertainment genius who raised animated cartoons to the level of an art form, will be struck under a bill signed by President Johnson.

One gold medal and up to 100,000 bronze ones are authorized under the bill Johnson signed Friday. They would not be produced at government expense.

The gold medal would be presented to Disney's widow. The others would be distributed by the California Institute of Arts, a college-level institution founded by Disney.

Rik Leslie Named to Advisory Panel

Rik Leslie of the Leslie Insurance Agency, has been named to serve on the St. Louis branch advisory panel of the Continental - National - American Insurance Group, whose branch office in St. Louis serves Eastern Missouri and Western Illinois.

The panel was created to achieve a better understanding of the insurance industry and develop a better agency-company relationship.

The first working meeting will be Tuesday in St. Louis.

College Will Invest $240,000

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Authority was given Southeast Missouri State College administration to investigate means of permanent investment of the $240,000 bequest given the college by the late Earl G. Grembling of Cape Girardeau at a meeting of the board of regents.

Dr. Mark F. Scully, college president, said approval was given to contact a St. Louis bank which specializes in such investments.

The money is now invested in treasury bills, Dr. Scully said, and is intended for scholarships to students interested in the fields of government and history.

Also considered, Dr. Scully said, was the salary level of the faculty. He said the board will request in the next college budget a seven per cent increase above the average of $10,168 which will be paid next academic year.

The board will advertise in the next few days for sale of +3½ million in bonds for construction of the final two high-rise units on the north campus.

Easter Island's only regular contact with the outside world is a supply and mail ship sent once a year by the Chilean Navy, which administers this remote outpost.

Humphrey Spirits Sunny Despite Rain

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Although a driving rain Saturday morning forced him to dedicate the Gateway Arch from underground, and kept him pinned in a sheltered area at the south leg of the Arch for about 20 minutes afterward, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said his St. Louis visit was "filled with sunshine."

"It didn't rain at all," he told a banquet crowd after the dedication.

Mayor A. J. Cervantes called the rain a "Kansas City mist that overcame St. Louis." It kept away thousands of persons from the long-awaited dedication.

Finally a crowd of about 600 persons jammed into the visitors center beneath the Arch. Much of a day-long program had to be canceled.

Humphrey called the Arch a symbol to the century that Americans spent awakening their land. He said the Arch was also the renewal of a commitment "to conserve and enrich the America we are creating in the cities, in the suburban areas, in the rural areas — that quality of life which characterized our past."

After giving due credit to the many persons whose efforts in the Jefferson National made the towering Arch possible, Mayor Cervantes noted that $6 million from the federal government is still needed to finish the job.

Humphrey, grinned at area Congressmen present and said: "You got the message. Matching funds are still needed. Mr. Mayor, you made it very clear."

The sunshine Humphrey spoke of at the banquet was of the political variety. Asked about a statement attributed to Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes that 50 of the state's 60 delegate votes would go to him, Humphrey said, "I'm pleased to hear he said that."

Reflecting once more on the 630-foot Arch, I couldn't help but get a spiritual feeling. It's so beautiful and simple. The good things in life are simple."

He said the Arch represents "an open society with room for everyone, just one citizenship. That's the greatest honor in the world, to be a citizen of the United States."

The weather cleared in the afternoon and Humphrey was given a brass band birthday party at the airport before leaving for Milwaukee.

He admitted to being 57 on Monday, looked at a huge birthday cake and said, "it looks mighty good. I've had a delicious and sweet time in St. Louis."

The Arch is the center piece in the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial which commemorates the Louisiana Purchase which brought much of that $6 million from the federal government is still needed to finish the job.

Hoarding Develops From French Strike

PARIS (AP) — "Sorry, price reductions for some madame, I can't sell you a kilo of potatoes," the grocer told a desperate housewife. "The 50 kilos you see are reserved for one of my best customers."

It was one of the aggravations of the general strike that hit France early last week, but there has been no open panic because the fresh food channel — farmers, private transporters and grocers — kept working.

French cities were supplied with milk, vegetables, fruit and meat as drivers concentrated on perishable products.

Still, some housewives started hoarding food and some items were hard to find in shops. On Saturday, for example, it was possible to buy beef, tomatoes or cherries in any shop but one could hardly get salt, sugar, oil, canned food or even wine.

Prices doubled or tripled in a week. Trying to force prices down, some angry housewives threatened to bring charges of black market profiteering against grocers as in World War II.

But there also were cases of gasoline stations closed because they were not supplied by the tank truck drivers.

By Saturday, it was impossible to buy gasoline in Paris except in filling stations reserved for doctors — marked with red crosses — and others reserved for drivers of food trucks.

An important reason for the absence of panic was that the electric plant workers, while on strike, did not cut the power supply as they have in the past. They apparently kept a power cut as a threat against the government in case negotiations come to a deadlock.

LBJ Drops Formalities For Gorton

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has pushed protocol aside in welcoming visiting Prime Minister John Gorton of Australia for talks believed sure to center on Vietnam, the Paris peace talks and future U.S. policy in Asia.

The prime minister's plane had scarcely touched down at nearby Andrews Air Force Base, Md., before Johnson hosted Gorton and his wife on an informal — and unscheduled — Potomac River cruise aboard the presidential yacht Sequoia.

The formal schedule called for the President and Mrs.

Johnson to greet Gorton and his American wife, Bettina, with a red-carpet ceremony and a 19-gun salute at the White House today.

The ceremony was still on tap but Johnson didn't wait for protocol to talk over the future with the head of a strongly allied and friendly government. Although Johnson has met with more than 60 heads of government during his presidency, he never before had made such an informal gesture of friendship.

On his arrival at Andrews, the 56-year old prime minister, a ruggedly handsome World War II fighter pilot who survived two crashes in combat, said he would like most to establish "the same contact and continuity with the President and his administration and his possible successors that my predecessor established."

The reference was to the late Prime Minister Harold Holt, who disappeared last December while swimming in the Australian surf. Holt had pledged his administration to be "all the way with LBJ" on the Vietnam war policies of this country. Gorton has been more constrained.

Gorton made clear on his arrival from Honolulu and San Francisco Sunday night that he would like to see some of the American presidential candidates who conceivably could change the course of U.S. policy after next January.

No schedules were announced but there was a strong possibility he would meet Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., after leaving Washington Wednesday morning for New York City.

President Johnson and his top aides are expected to stress in talks with Gorton that the United States is bound by its defense commitments under the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) and ANZUS, the Australia-New Zealand-U.S. defense alliance on the Pacific, no matter who is president.

Peace Panel Hopes Public Will Be Patient

WASHINGTON (AP) — A blue-ribbon citizens group including former President Dwight D. Eisenhower voiced fear today that many Americans have been misled into expecting "too much, too soon" from U.S.-North Vietnamese talks in Paris.

Americans think of negotiations as a road to peace but there is unmistakable evidence Hanoi's leaders consider negotiations as another way to fight a war, said a special panel of the Citizens Committee for Peace with Freedom in Vietnam.

It warned against expecting to "win at the conference table what we have not won on the battlefield" and against "losing

The Daily Standard, Sikeston, Mo.
Monday, May 27, 1968

at the conference table what we have fought so hard, and given so much, to protect."

While the group favored exploring for "a reasonable time" prospects for a peaceful settlement, it rated poor the chances for productive negotiations now.

The 1,700-word statement on "Negotiations: Hopes versus Realities" was issued by a 14-man special panel on rate.

The citizens committee was organized last fall by former Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., and includes both living ex-presidents—Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman—in its nationally known membership of about 190.

It labels itself a nonpartisan group setting forth the views of the "silent center" of U.S. public opinion on Vietnam as distinguished from vocal critics of the right and left. Its past expressions have been generally favorable toward Johnson administration policy.

Credit Disclosure Bill at a Glance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are key provisions of a credit disclosure bill passed by Congress Wednesday:

—Stores extending credit, and financial institutions lending money, must disclose annual interest rate figured on declining balance of obligation and total cost of the credit in dollars and cents over full life of the credit.

Exempted are first mortgages on homes, purchases of $75 or less when credit charges don't exceed $5 and purchases of more than $75 when credit charges don't exceed $7.50.

—Stores offering open-end or revolving credit plans must state charges of full annual rate plus monthly 14-man special panel on rate.

—Homeowners contracting for home improvements financed by first or second mortgages have three days to cancel the deal.

—Stores advertising installment loans must give annual interest rate, cash price, number of payments and their due dates.

—When a customer's pay is attached or garnished, the first public opinion on Vietnam as $48 of pay is exempt, as is 75 per cent of all take-home pay. No employee could be fired for a single garnishment.

—Effective dates: For credit disclosure section, July 1, 1969; for garnishment provision, July 1, 1970.

Bubb Thinks Reagan May Enter Race

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The national head of a citizens committee for Ronald Reagan predicts the California governor will become an active candidate for the GOP presidential nomination if he does well in Tuesday's Oregon primary.

Henry Bubb of Topeka, Kan., chairman of the citizens group, told newsmen he thinks that a showing topping the 22 per cent of the vote Reagan got in the Nebraska primary will propel the governor into a position as an active but unannounced contender for the top nomination.

Bubb, a Wendell Wilkie campaigner in 1940, said he thinks Reagan is the kind of conservative-minded occupant of the White House the country needs. He said that is why he is campaigning for him despite the California governor's insistence that he is not a serious candidate for top place on the ticket.

Reagan is unchallenged in the June 4 California primary for that state's 86 convention nominating votes. This will rival the home base support for Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who is expected to have most of New York's 92 votes in his corner.

Reagan is on the Oregon ballot. A write-in campaign for Rockefeller has been launched here. Robert Ridgley, an attorney heading the write-in effort, estimated the five-day blitz for Rockefeller will cost $100,000.

Ridgley said receiving 10 per cent of the Republican vote would help establish Rockefeller as a solid contender for the nomination. Few involved politicians shared this view.

Bubb was not optimistic that the combined Reagan-Rockefeller vote would challenge the majority that former Vice President Richard M. Nixon seems likely to record.

Nixon who shares the ballot with Reagan, has been taking precautions against a dip in the average of about 70 per cent of the vote that he has maintained in four previous primaries. He returns Friday for more campaigning in search of Oregon's 18 convention votes. Nixon's supporters appear confident.

Teamsters Union Power Fight Brews

WASHINGTON (AP) — Frank E. Fitzsimmons, sitting in as Teamsters Union president for the imprisoned James R. Hoffa, hints he intends to keep control of the world's biggest union until he can run for election to succeed Hoffa.

Denying a published report that he plans to retire before the next convention of the 1.9 million-member Teamsters in 1971, Fitzsimmons, 60, said, "I will be at this business for years to come."

Fitzsimmons' statement, published in the Teamsters' magazine, appeared to confirm other reports that most top union officials discount the possibility of Hoffa getting freed in time for a convention bid to return to power.

"I hope to return," Hoffa said 14 months ago when he was carted off to the Lewisburg, Pa., federal penitentiary to serve an eight-year jury-tampering sentence.

But while Hoffa still retains the title of president, without the $100,000-a-year salary, his firm control of the union is gone.

Hoffa still is fighting a five-year federal fraud sentence in connection with the use of union pension funds. This is separate from the jury-tampering conviction.

Most Teamsters leaders believe if Hoffa is paroled, it won't be until after the June 1971 convention, when his five-year term as president runs out.

But Fitzsimmons, personally chosen by Hoffa to serve as acting president, isn't expected to have clear sailing to win the Teamsters' presidency in his own right.

Much of the power under Hoffa's firm central control of the union has slipped back to 12 regional vice presidents, who operate with a minimum of consultation with Fitzsimmons.

Several vice presidents—including Harold Gibbons of St. Louis, Murray Miller of Dallas and Ray Schoessling of Chicago—are expected to surface with presidential ambitions of their own by convention time.

With the convention three years away, informed sources are already predicting a wide open convention fight to replace Hoffa as president.

But the fight isn't likely to begin before then. Hoffa, at the 1966 convention eight months before going to prison, directed the rewriting of the Teamsters constitution to block any power play for the presidency unless both he and Fitzsimmons resign.

There appears no possibility that either of them will and so the Teamsters vice presidents, virtually powerless to move before the convention, are biding their time.

Paris Talks Remote to Peck's Mob

CAI LAY, Vietnam (AP) — The day peace talks started in Paris, Capt. Mike Peck led 100 Americans on a daylong trek through the mucky paddies and steaming nipa palms of the Mekong Delta.

It was a frustrating search along the sluggish Bao Ba River for an enemy hideout that was never found. The sun was blistering and the company ran out of fresh water, drinking stinking canal water made worse tasting by bitter purification tablets. There was no time to eat.

The men were beat when they came back to their bunkered camp at sundown. They gulped down a hot meal and dropped off to sleep on dirty blankets, still grimy from the delta's mud.

It was just another day, a typical dry-hole, the husky, 27-year-old company commander recalled. "Nobody even mentioned the peace talks. I don't think my 'hoodlums' gave it a thought."

Peck's "hoodlums"—he sometimes also calls them "my merry mob"—are almost all draftees, many of them teen-agers. A sergeant of 24 considers himself a father-figure.

For them, the diplomatic convolutions of Paris are remote and unreal—as most of the world becomes unreal to an infantryman whose life depends on his rifle and immediate buddies.

Since the Americans and North Vietnamese began talking in Paris, the company has been on the march daily, seeking guerrillas who slip along canals and through villages they have known since childhood. At night the Americans put out ambushes and roaming, six-man "killer patrols."

With constant movement a part of his life, an infantryman in Vietnam has few benchmarks to judge time. Ask him what he has done since the peace talks started May 13 and he will reply, "How long ago was that?"

"Everything sort of blends in out here," says Peck, who is from Milford, Ohio, speaks French and English, served an exchange tour with the French army's paratroops and is on his second tour in Vietnam.

"You know," said Pfc. Dwight Shuey, a 20-year-old from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., "we're not as bad as we sound. We do try to follow things. We talk about the peace talks sometimes but the war still goes on. It's the war we think about mostly."

"I do believe in the cause of this war," Shuey said. "I think we should be here. A lot of times I don't agree with how it is being fought but I think we should be here..."

His platoon sergeant, William Gulden of Pennington, N.J., a husky 24-year-old who plans to go home to study psychology, agreed, with reservations.

"Most of the guys couldn't care less what happens in Paris," he shrugged. "They know it won't affect anybody here for a long, long time."

Suggestions Scarce

LIBERTY, Mo. (AP) — Three weeks ago Fred Snyder, city administrator, put up seven suggestions boxes in stores, banks and filling stations so people could disclose their gripes.

He opened the boxes Friday and found only one cigar wrapper.

"That's all we got," Snyder said. "Needless to say, I was disappointed—that we didn't get the whole cigar."

Child Care Taught Eighth Graders

Students of the eighth grade home economics classes, taught by Mrs. William Sapp, spent two days visiting the kindergarten and elementary schools to observe the children up to the second grade in study and play habits.

In reading sessions they used

references on sitting safely, understanding babies and little children.

The eighth grade students were shown films on keeping children happy and safe. The large age class then went to the schools to observe the younger children and brought with them improvised toys they had made. They were taught how to hold a baby and change a diaper.

The class passed a written test.

The girls brought with them a tote bag for supplies, and bean bags for play, after which they read stories to the younger children for their baby sitting experience.

Schools visited were the Head Start program, Presbyterian and Methodist kindergartens, Matthews, Lee Hunter and Southwest schools.

lobsters or overgrown bunches of lettuce.

I shall also miss the robot of "Lost in Space," which over two seasons developed a lovable personality and in one episode was involved in a romance of sorts with a lady computer.

"Tarzan," if watched in the proper mood and not tackled too often, has also been a frequent source of amusement.

All of these, of course, were potboilers and primarily designed to attract the young audiences, but often in their earnest ways they were funnier than the most conscientious comedy shows.

Dirksen Bid 'to Keep Subversive Board Flounders'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen has lost another round in his dogged bid to keep the moribund Subversive Activities Control Board alive beyond this year.

A desk-thumping, shouting speech in which Dirksen suggested he had backing from President Johnson and railed at Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark failed to rally enough Senate support for the Illinois Republican's cause.

Dirksen had proposed a crime control bill amendment that would allow the attorneys-general of each of the 50 states to prosecute alleged subversive organizations before the board.

But amid opponents' complaints that the precedent-shattering approach went too far, the Senate turned him down, 49 to 27.

The board was the subject of widespread publicity last year with the disclosure it had not handled any business for nearly two years.

Its five members each draw $26,000 a year.

The agency was spotlighted in mid-1967 when it was learned that the latest appointee was a 29-year-old accountant, Simon F. McHugh Jr., who had married one of President Johnson's secretaries.

That development prompted inquiries into the board's operations. When its inactive status was disclosed, cries arose in Congress for its abolition.

But Dirksen moved to preserve it. He finally won approval of a measure providing that it continue in operation provided at least one case was brought before it by next Dec. 31.

Otherwise, it would go out of business next June 30.

The agency was set up 17 years ago during the anti-Communist activity sparked by the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, R-Wis.

Its original authority was to identify subversives and subversive organizations and compel them to register.

But Supreme Court decisions have stricken most of the basic authority of the agency.

Dirksen charged that Clark was "subverting and distorting" the intent of Congress by not bringing any cases before the board.

Grade school age children are invited.

Nixon Takes Stock of Chances

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, summing up five months of primary campaigning, says only an unusual combination of circumstances can deny him the Republican presidential nomination.

Barring some dramatic new development that cannot now be foreseen, Nixon said in an interview he is confident he can stand off the thrusts of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and California Gov. Ronald Reagan and walk off with the prize on an early ballot at the Miami Beach, Fla., convention.

One development which could cloud this optimistic picture, he concedes, would be an unexpected showing by Rockefeller and Reagan in Tuesday's Oregon primary palling.

Nixon has lowered his sights in this last of the major primaries for the Republican contenders, maintaining that 55 per cent of the GOP vote will be a satisfactory victory. He has been averaging around 70 per cent in other primaries, where the combined Rockefeller-Reagan threat has not been serious.

If he wins in Oregon and adds South Dakota's 14 convention votes in a June 4 primary without further campaigning there, Nixon thinks he will have established a commanding lead in the nomination contest.

Nixon said if there ever was a chance that the Republican governors would swing their combined weight behind Rockefeller it has evaporated. The GOP governors will meet in Tulsa, Okla., June 14-15 to draft proposed convention platform planks and discuss candidates.

"I will have more governors supporting me than backing Rockefeller," he predicted.

Nixon said he expects a majority of the delegations headed by favorite sons to come over to his camp after a first ballot test of the candidates' standings.

He said, for example, that he regards Illinois, where Sen. Charles H. Percy may be the favorite son of the 58-vote delegation, as "my best state" in the budget request for the Ozark the Northern industrial complex, National Scenic Riverway in Missouri Thursday. The figure substantial support from Ohio, approved by the committee is Michigan, and Massachusetts $1,530,900, compared to the when the countdown begins, budget figure of $2,307,900.

Lindsay Hits Trail for Rockefeller

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, a proxy campaigning for Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, moved into Oregon today, but the forces of Richard M. Nixon professed little concern.

Lindsay, who got financial assistance from Rockefeller in his campaign for mayor three years ago, has a day of appearances in Portland, Eugene and Corvallis to seek write-in votes for the absent governor in next Tuesday's GOP presidential primary.

But the battle was only of percentages, with promoters of Rockefeller and the organization of another absentee, California Gov. Ronald Reagan, acknowledging Nixon would win easily.

A Nixon lieutenant said the goal of the former vice president is to outpoll the combined total of Reagan and Rockefeller.

He said Nixon has been advised there is no doubt this majority can be attained. In past primaries, the Nixon showing has soared far above such announced goals, to 70 per cent in his last outing, the Nebraska primary.

Howell Appling Jr., chairman of the Oregon Nixon organization, said he does not think Rockefeller or Reagan will gain enough primary support to enhance his own presidential position.

Robert L. Ridgley, a lawyer and a leader of the Rockefeller effort, said that if the New York governor could capture 10 per cent of Tuesday's GOP vote, the showing would be a good one.

He got 5 per cent in Nebraska's presidential primary on May 14, while Reagan received 22 per cent.

Reagan is on the Oregon ballot, which lists all potential presidential contenders who do not disavow candidacy. The Californian left his name there on grounds that to remove it would be inconsistent with his position as a favorite-son candidate in his own state.

Reagan has not campaigned here but an Oregon campaign organization is working for his cause with a television barrage and with literature mailed to GOP voters.

Nixon is due in Portland tonight for a three-day campaign. He planned appearances near Portland, in Klamath Falls and on a statewide television hookup—all on a one-day basis.

Humphrey Polls Well in Pennsylvania

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey is the overwhelming presidential choice of committed Pennsylvania Democratic convention delegates, an Associated Press poll showed today.

The poll showed him running 27 to 1 ahead of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and 3 to 1 in front of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy. Pennsylvania, with 162 delegates, will have 130 votes at the party's national convention in Chicago this August. This is about 10 per cent of the number needed to win the nomination. The delegation is the third largest among the states.

The AP mail and telephone survey lists these Pennsylvania votes:

Humphrey 63 3/4, McCarthy 19, Kennedy 2 1/4, uncommitted or unreachable 45. It is almost a clear majority with a third of the votes still up for grabs.

Humphrey supporters in the big industrial state are headed by former Gov. George M. Leader, and they claim that nearly all of those who still have "no choice" will be with the vice president at the convention's first roll call.

Humphrey, reached at Washington, said he preferred not to comment on the AP poll.

and would rather wait until the delegates themselves take some definitive action.

This could come today in Harrisburg.

A formal meeting of Pennsylvania delegates has been scheduled—and it is possible the leaders of the state organization, who have tried to maintain official neutrality, may leap on the Humphrey bandwagon.

The strong Pennsylvania support for Humphrey, in a state that has backed a Democrat in every presidential election since 1932 except when Dwight D. Eisenhower ran in 1952 and 1956, is bound to give a powerful thrust to the vice president's nomination drive.

All but one of the McCarthy delegates were elected at the April primary, in opposition to organization-backed choices.

Of the delegates 108 will have 3/4 of a vote each, 44 will have one vote while 10 will have 1/2 vote.

Mary Martin Hits Road In Big Way

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Mary Martin says "let's hit the road," she implies no half-way measures. Here is the itinerary she and Robert Preston are following with their Broadway hit, "I Do! I Do!"

Rochester, Indianapolis, Minneapolis, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Vancouver, B.C., Seattle, Portland, St. Louis, Phoenix, Omaha, St. Paul, Milwaukee, Kansas City, Dallas, Houston, Cleveland, Memphis, Charlotte, Greensboro, Richmond, Washington, D.C., Baltimore, Detroit, Philadelphia, Raleigh, Miami, Jacksonville, Hershey, Pa.

That will take them through March 1969. Still unbooked are April and May, after which the tour ends and Mary and her husband, Richard Halliday, plan to spend two years on their ranch in Brazil. "That is a promise we made to each other; we even signed a paper to that effect on our last anniversary," she insists.

Mary Martin is the last of the great Broadway stars to devote her talents to "the road," that is, to tour the major American cities with a play that has met with success in New York. Oddly enough, she fell in love with the traveling bug during her brief movie career.

"It was after I had made 'The Great Victor Herbert' and Paramount sent Allan Jones and me out on the road to publicize it," she recalled. "We traveled all over, playing seven shows a day. Think of it—seven shows a day! But I loved it. And while I was in Houston, I was lucky enough to meet Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, who were traveling with 'Taming of the Shrew'."

"I naturally worshipped them as greats of the theater, and I listened to everything they said. One thing they told me was: 'If you should go back to the theater, be sure to go on the road with your plays. You will find the audiences enormously stimulating, and those people will come to see you whenever they visit New York.'"

"As it turned out, I decided I did prefer the theater. I left films and never went back except for doing 'My Heart Belongs to Daddy' for Cole Porter (in the film biography, 'Night and Day.')

Miss Martin has toured in "One Touch of Venus," "Annie Get Your Gun," "Peter Pan," "Kind Sir," "Skin of Our Teeth," "Hello, Dolly!" and with her own concert, which visited 87 cities. She didn't tour with her two biggest hits, "South Pacific" and "The Sound of Music," because they remained in New York too long. "The second year of a New York show is miserable," she remarked. "No matter how much you like the play, you are faced with going down the same street, entering the same stage door and using the same dressing room until you almost go out of your mind."

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

every week. And the audiences can be a revelation. "Take 'I Do! I Do.' It's a show about marriage—how two people can live together for 50 years and somehow survive all the problems that confront them. Now in New York we got laughs in the right places and the audiences were usually warm. But New Yorkers go to the theater because it's the thing to do. They don't necessarily go for enjoyment. "The difference on the road is that the people are buying tickets to see Bob and me. They truly want to see the show. And the audience response is unbelievable. They seem to accept the fact that a show about two old married people can be enjoyable."

Spock Trial Goes Into Second Week

BOSTON (AP) — What apparently will be a long trial for Dr. Benjamin Spock and four codefendants entered its second week today.

Prosecution testimony in the draft evasion conspiracy case has centered on a meeting last October inside the Department of Justice building in Washington.

An FBI agent from Washington was scheduled to testify for the government following the weekend recess.

On trial with 65-year-old baby doctor are Yale Chaplain William Sloane Coffin Jr., 43; Michael Ferber, 23, a Harvard graduate student; Mitchell Goodman, 44, a New York writer and teacher; and Marcus Raskin, 33, a Washington research director.

If convicted of charges of conspiring to "aid, abet and counsel" youths to avoid the draft they could receive maximum sentences of five year prison terms and $10,000 fines.

The trial recessed Friday after testimony by John McDonough, an assistant deputy U.S. attorney general, who said Spock, Coffin, Goodman and Raskin demanded last Oct. 20 that he accept from them a briefcase filled with draft cards and facsimiles.

"I told them I could not and would not accept the briefcase," McDonough testified.

McDonough said Raskin told him the draft cards were evidence of a federal law violation and that it was his duty to receive them.

McDonough said he summoned two FBI agents to take custody of the briefcase.

Latest estimates are that it may take the government as long as a month to present its evidence.

There's been no estimate of how long it will take the defense to present its side, but it could run for several days.

Man Arrested for Noisy Outburst

Near Truman Home

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — The vociferous demands of a man who identified himself as Harry B. Hammond, 38, of Independence, brought his arrest Saturday near the home of former president Harry Truman.

Police and Secret Service agents removed the man from the area after he had loudly called for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to come to the front steps of the Truman home.

He was asked how he arrived at the home and he told police he came in a 1967 model school bus. The bus had the name "Bartow County School District" painted on its side, and he said he had stolen the bus in Bartow County, Georgia.

Federal authorities began checking on the bus and the man was booked by police on a charge of being drunk in public.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Some burglars with truly continental taste buds made off with a haul from a Phoenix tavern. Officers said they stole 23 cases of American beer, as well as an assortment of Mexican tamales and Polish sausages.

Marines at Khe Sanh Wanted To Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Marine colonel says that although outnumbered four to one by enemy forces surrounding the Khe Sanh outpost in Vietnam earlier this year, his men wanted to attack.

The situation was not comparable to the Dienbienphu situation of 1954 in which the French met disastrous defeat at the hands of Ho Chi Minh, said Col. David E. Lownds.

"I'd be fibbing to you if I said the kids didn't want to go (on the attack)," Lownds said Friday.

Khe Sanh, a Marine outpost below the Demilitarized Zone, overlooked major Communist infiltration routes into the northern provinces of South Vietnam. The Khe Sanh siege lasted from January to mid-March.

The slender, graying colonel told a news conference higher military authorities decided on what he called a "set piece battle" primarily concerned with the defense of Khe Sanh.

But without appearing to be critical, he said, "If I had my druthers I'd rather be out attacking."

He said his mission to defend did not change during the siege. When the outpost came under heavy attack, there was some questioning of the soundness of the U.S. strategy.

However, Lownds said, it would be wrong to think the Marines had been completely "buttoned up" by the 20,000 enemy troops. He said his men were able to conduct armed patrols nearly a mile outside the post.

"I really controlled all the critical terrain around the base," he said.

Lownds said that as to the question of his men attacking, top military strategists had to consider the large numbers of North Vietnamese that would have joined in the battle.

Lownds had four battalions, including South Vietnam's 37th Rangers.

The North Vietnamese never launched a major attack because of strong U.S. air support and firepower, Lownds said. But the enemy did make several battalion-sized probes.

Lownds was awarded the Navy Cross Friday in a ceremony at the Marine Barracks.

vice chairman of the council. Dr. Kerr said the association is on record for establishment of a new medical school in Kansas City and other steps to increase the number of doctors in the state.

Insurance Firm

NEW YORK — Metropolitan Life Insurance Company invested $4,889,150 in home and business mortgages in Missouri through local mortgage correspondents during the first three months of 1968, the company announced.

This brought the company's total mortgage investment in the state to $145,150,000 as of April 1, 1968.

Metropolitan Life's mortgage correspondents for Missouri and the amounts they disbursed for the company during the January-April period included Mercantile Mortgage Co., $107,150 in the Sikeston area.

FLY THIS FLAG ON YOUR HOME

MEMORIAL DAY - MAY 30

RECIPE FOR HOMEMADE OLD GLORY

... AMERICAN STYLE!

Ingredients (Mix as directed)

- 2 Yards of White Bunting
- 2 Yards of Red Bunting
- 1 Yard of White Starred Blue Bunting
- 1 Canvas Heading
- 2 Brass Grommets
- Thread
- 1 Six-foot, 2-piece Staff
- 1 Decorative Staff Top
- 1 Heavy Cord Halyard
- 1 Heavy Metal Mounting Bracket
- 3 Screws

DIRECTIONS:

Cut red and white bunting into narrow strips. Cut white starred bunting into rectangle containing 50 stars. Stitch together 13 stripes, seven red and six white. Stitch star field into position on stripes. Sew on heading. Affix brass grommets. Tie on cord halyard and mount on staff. Screw permanent bracket to door or window. Put mounted flag into bracket. Flag should be raised in the morning, lowered each night. Now you have a working do-it-yourself flag set which should fly on every American home on every national holiday. There are over twenty holidays on which the flag should fly.

When this flag flies on a home it says AMERICANS LIVE HERE. They love their country. They remember the sacrifices made by so many to bring their country so far along the road of history. The fifty-six signers of the Declaration of Independence. The framers of the Bill of Rights. The writers of the constitution. They remember Francis Scott Key and the birth of the Star Spangled Banner on a black night at Fort McHenry. They fly their flag to honor Washington in the Wilderness, Lincoln at Gettysburg. John Paul Jones and Paul Revere. Old Glory symbolizes all the countless unknown Americans at Valley Forge and York Town, New Orleans, Tripoli, Omaha Beach and Iwo Jima, South Korea and Vietnam. Victories and heartaches, successes and failures. They remember.

These are the things for which Old Glory stands.

We believe every home should fly the flag on every national holiday. So that you don't have to turn Betsy Rossy and make your own... we offer a fine home flag set at our cost as a patriotic public service. Buy one and fly one. Mail your order or come in for yours. For your convenience a flag coupon is included below. Snip it out and bring it in, now.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

THE BASIC advantages of the two-story home have been incorporated in Plan HAS47P sleeping privacy and the economy of building up instead of out. Here, the second floor has been placed over the garage, making an unusual exterior. For the sake of privacy, the large glass expanses open to the two rear patios. Adjoining the living room, with its cathedral ceiling, is a dining room which is slightly elevated from the living room. There are 1,089 square feet on the first floor and 1,042 square feet on the second floor. Architect is Samuel Paul, 89-30 161 St., Jamaica, N.Y.

If you think staying in school is tough, listen to someone who quit.

"Sure you can get work if you quit school. Real no-where work. At $50 or $60 a week. Ever try living on that? But if you don't have a diploma, you just have to sit there and get stepped on. You don't get moved up, even if you can do the work. Like I was doing a lot of things my boss was supposed to. But she was making the money—about twice as much as me. Finally, I went back to school and worked full time, too. That wasn't much fun, either. But it was something I had to do. You just don't realize how important an education is until you try to get along without one."

CYNTHIA RODRIGUEZ
Based on an interview taped April 6, 1967

To get a good job, you need a good education. So if you're in school, stay there. If you've quit, find out how to get more training. See your State Employment Service or Youth Opportunity Center.

Humphrey Tops Missouri
Demo Committee Poll

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Vice President Hubert Humphrey won 72 per cent of the support from Missouri's Democratic committeemen and women in a poll conducted by State Democratic Chairman Delton L. Houtchens.

Houtchens said Thursday the poll gave Sen. Robert F. Kennedy 23 per cent and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy 5 per cent. He reported on the results from 1,163 questionnaires returned out of 3,450 sent to local Democratic committee members since May 15.

"It would be of great advantage to both state and county tickets this fall," the state chairman said, "if the Democratic party nominates the strongest available candidate for the presidency."

The Prayer
from
The Upper Room

Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid. (Matthew 5:14) PRAYER: Dear Lord, thank You for the light of Christ. Help it shine through us that others may see Christ's way in our way. In the name of Him who is the way. Amen.

A gypsy who bought a house in New Jersey ran a large pole from floor to ceiling in the center of the living room. He wanted to give the room the look of a tent.

Two Trips to Doctor
Urged to Thaw Ice

Dear Ann Landers: I'm getting pretty sick of your pat answers. They are beginning to sound as if you crank them out with a machine. I refer specifically to your replies to husbands who complain about iceberg wives.

My wife has been a stationary snowdrift from the day we married. For 14 years I have put up with her excuses and "duty" expressions of marital "bliss." I first started to kid her about finding satisfaction elsewhere if she didn't warm up. Later I stopped kidding and made the threat in earnest. Her answer was, "I don't care what you do as long as you don't bother ME."

I am 35. My wife 33. This is too young to dry up and blow away. She is an excellent mother, a fine housekeeper, a gracious hostess and active in the League of Women Voters, but she is more than cold — she's frozen.

Be practical and give me an answer that does more than take up two inches of newspaper space. — STARVATION DIET

Dear S. D.: Many are cold but few are frozen. Your wife is probably the product of a guilt-ridden, inhibited mother who believed all men were beasts because that's what HER mother told her.

You say your wife is an iceberg. This is an apt description in more ways than one. Four-fifths of an iceberg is below the surface. Your job is to get acquainted with the whole woman.

Your iceberg — I mean your wife — should talk to her doctor. She is not living up to her responsibilities to you. Furthermore, she is cheating herself. You should see a doctor, too. A French philosopher once said, "There are no cold women — only clumsy men."

Today In U.S. History

Today is Monday, May 27, the 148th day of 1968. There are 218 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1941, the British navy sank the German battleship Bismarck, with a loss of 2,300 lives. The Bismarck had been pursued more than 1,700 miles after sinking the HMS Hood three days earlier.

In 1860, a force under the Italian patriot, Giuseppe Garibaldi, invaded Sicily and captured Palermo.

In 1905, a Russian fleet of 32 vessels was wiped out by the Japanese.

In 1936, the British liner Queen Mary began its maiden transatlantic voyage.

In 1937, the Golden Gate Bridge was opened at San Francisco.

In 1945, more than 100 crewmen were killed in an explosion aboard the U.S. aircraft carrier Bennington off the coast of Rhode Island.

In 1964, Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru died in New Delhi.

Ten years ago—The U.N. Security Council postponed debate on a conflict between Lebanon and the United Arab Republic to permit the Arab League to consider the issues.

Five years ago—The former Mau Mau leader, Jomo Kenyatta, became Kenya's first prime minister.

One year ago—The U.S. aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy was christened by the late president's daughter, Caroline.

Father and Son Drown Near Lilbourn
LILBOURN, MO. (AP) — The New Madrid County sheriff's office said Sunday the bodies of a father and his son were pulled out of a small lake near Lilbourn after their boat overturned. The victims were identified as Chester Nix, 59, of Route three, Poplar Bluff, and his 17-year-old son, Chester. A third man in the boat, James Robinson, 25, of Lilbourn, made it to shore. Officials said a small metal boat overturned apparently when the waters became rough. The dead men were former residents of Lilbourn. The accident occurred at the northwest side of the Cotton Belt railroad trestle. The slough was formed by the current in the flood of 1927. Ordinarily the water in Washout is shallow, but rose rapidly due to heavy recent rains. The body of the father was recovered Sunday at 1:30 a.m. by deputy Walter Ivy, New Madrid county, and Johnnie Martin, Lilbourn city marshal. The body of Chester Brant Nix was recovered at 2:30 a.m. Sunday by conservation agent Flip Dees, and George Bock. The search was directed by Sheriff W. L. "Cowboy" Ramsey. Chester H. Nix was born in Winston county, Ala., May 15, 1909. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Bernice Nix, Poplar Bluff; three daughters, Mrs. Barbara Robinson, Lilbourn, Mrs. Virginia Brooks, Annandale, Va., and Mrs. Janis Sewell, Daytona Beach, Fla.; one son, Randy Nix, Poplar Bluff; two brothers, Cecil Nix, Navoo, Ala., and Leon Nix, Talladega, Ala.; three sisters, Mrs. Pernie McCollum and Mrs. Pauline Baker, both of Jasper, Ala., and Mrs. Pearl Hendrix, Carbon Hill, Ala.; his father and stepmother, Jeff W. and Essie Nix, Talladega, Ala. Chester Brant Nix was born in Sikeston, Jan. 25, 1951. He attended the Lilbourn schools before moving near Poplar Bluff. Other survivors are his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Whitehurst, Heber Springs, Ark. Double funeral services will be Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the First Baptist church, with the Rev. Gilbert Hulme, officiating. Burial will be in Mounds Park cemetery, with Ponder Funeral Home in charge. Famed naturalist-photographer Heinz Sielmann recently spent days shivering in an icy blind perched on a Pribilof Island cliff to make close-ups of the bizarre tufted puffin.

Father and Son Drown Near Lilbourn

LILBOURN, MO. (AP) — The New Madrid County sheriff's office said Sunday the bodies of a father and his son were pulled out of a small lake near Lilbourn after their boat overturned. The victims were identified as Chester Nix, 59, of Route three, Poplar Bluff, and his 17-year-old son, Chester. A third man in the boat, James Robinson, 25, of Lilbourn, made it to shore. Officials said a small metal boat overturned apparently when the waters became rough. The dead men were former residents of Lilbourn. The accident occurred at the northwest side of the Cotton Belt railroad trestle. The slough was formed by the current in the flood of 1927. Ordinarily the water in Washout is shallow, but rose rapidly due to heavy recent rains. The body of the father was recovered Sunday at 1:30 a.m. by deputy Walter Ivy, New Madrid county, and Johnnie Martin, Lilbourn city marshal. The body of Chester Brant Nix was recovered at 2:30 a.m. Sunday by conservation agent Flip Dees, and George Bock. The search was directed by Sheriff W. L. "Cowboy" Ramsey. Chester H. Nix was born in Winston county, Ala., May 15, 1909. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Bernice Nix, Poplar Bluff; three daughters, Mrs. Barbara Robinson, Lilbourn, Mrs. Virginia Brooks, Annandale, Va., and Mrs. Janis Sewell, Daytona Beach, Fla.; one son, Randy Nix, Poplar Bluff; two brothers, Cecil Nix, Navoo, Ala., and Leon Nix, Talladega, Ala.; three sisters, Mrs. Pernie McCollum and Mrs. Pauline Baker, both of Jasper, Ala., and Mrs. Pearl Hendrix, Carbon Hill, Ala.; his father and stepmother, Jeff W. and Essie Nix, Talladega, Ala. Chester Brant Nix was born in Sikeston, Jan. 25, 1951. He attended the Lilbourn schools before moving near Poplar Bluff. Other survivors are his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Whitehurst, Heber Springs, Ark. Double funeral services will be Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the First Baptist church, with the Rev. Gilbert Hulme, officiating. Burial will be in Mounds Park cemetery, with Ponder Funeral Home in charge. Famed naturalist-photographer Heinz Sielmann recently spent days shivering in an icy blind perched on a Pribilof Island cliff to make close-ups of the bizarre tufted puffin.
